Today

They Sang.
We Really Fly.
To Discourage Reds.
The Gorilla's Thumb.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MRS. NAIDU, Gandhi's successor as leader, goes to jail for nine months.

Two hundred thousand Hindus marched on the British fort area at Bombay yesterday. You would call that serious.

But 400 policemen stopped the 200,000. The latter sat down on the ground and sang songs. Irishmen wouldn't do that.

The Graf Zeppelin, having sailed 4000 miles to Brazil in 60 hours, has started for Rio de Janeiro. Those who have spent three weeks on the same trip know what it means to reduce the time to 60 hours.

A heavier-than-air flier, starting from Connecticut for Buenos Aires, hopes to make the trip in 60 hours, 7500 miles. Flying is really coming.

Congress votes, 210 to 18, an inquiry into "Red activities." This means the effort of "Red Russia" to change the government of the United States by persuading the "toilers to arise in their might and throw off their chains."

Throwing off your chains would be all right, but throwing off your automobile, radio, vacuum cleaner, talking machine and other accessories of the modern worker would make life dull.

If Congress will use its brains and the nation's resources to keep competent workers busy, it need not worry about any imported Russian "Red program."

If it doesn't keep American workers busy, it may have a Red program, home-made, more dangerous than anything ever devised by Russia.

Scientists are interested in the thumb of the gorilla, not much bigger than that of a human baby. It is an insignificant little thing attached to the gorilla's huge hand, and it proves that thinking has developed the human thumb. Lack of thinking by the gorilla explains his thumb being so small. It is used only as a hook to put over branches of trees. Man uses his thumb for 10,000 different purposes in connection with all four of his fingers, and all his tools.

Dr. Osborn and Dr. McGregor, both as learned as Aristotle and Archimedes combined, do not agree on the meaning of gorilla thumbs. Dr. Osborn says it proves that man has no ape ancestry.

Dr. McGregor says: "Nothing of the kind."

What it certainly proves is that the gorilla doesn't know how to think, except in a very primitive way. But that does not disprove the ancestor theory. Many have ancestors who did not know how to think, and many of us haven't learned yet.

If you are sincere and wait long enough your value is recognized.

Italy yesterday crowned with flowers the statue of Savonarola, honoring the rebellious monk of Florence. He was burned alive. He advocated destruction of all works of art in a campaign against luxury.

Joan of Arc was also burned alive, and religion had much to do with her burning. Now, honored everywhere, she is included among the saints.

A gold star mother, aged 91 years, starts for Europe to visit the grave of her stepson, disdaining the offer of a nurse, perhaps because she comes from California, where you don't grow old.

She told the young officer who welcomed her to New York to show her the whole city before she went on the ship. He did.

She goes abroad for three reasons: to see her stepson's grave, to see Paris before she dies, and, said she, "to see if those French vintages are as good as they say."

That statement about the French vintages will be offensive to our authorities, if the woman has sailed, or steps might have been taken to leave her at home.

Prohibitionists will find comfort in the Pennsylvania election. Recent wet and dry polls seemed to indicate that the whole country is wet and longing for beer. Clifford Pinchot ran for governor of Pennsylvania as an ardent dry and won. There is a difference between straw votes and real votes.

The Literary Digest wet-dry poll discovers that 43 states are moderately wet, five dripping wet, five bone dry.

London Naval Treaty Insults Intelligence of American People

With the verdict of the General Board of the Navy that the London naval treaty is "unjust to the United States," the next Commander-in-Chief of the United States fleet, Admiral Chase, and the president of the Naval War College, Admiral Pringle, are in complete and emphatic agreement.

The one as a witness before the committee on foreign relations and the other as a witness before the committee on naval affairs sustained at every point the findings of the general board against the treaty as given to these committees on behalf of the board by its chairman, Admiral Bristol, and by Admiral Jones, President Coolidge's delegate to the Geneva conference.

In the opinion of Admiral Chase and Admiral Pringle, the London treaty—

Abandons the original and consistent American contention that "limitation should be by tonnage in categories, and that within the limits of the tonnage and such other limits as may have been laid down each country should be free to construct such ships as it sees fit in view of its own circumstances, needs and interests"—

Deprives the United States of the right to build the sort of cruiser ships within the cruiser category "best suited to our own defense needs and necessities"—

Fails to give the United States cruiser parity with the British—

Abandons the 5-3 ratio with Japan and greatly increases the relative strength of the Japanese navy to the grave disadvantage of the United States—

Scraps the established naval policy of the United States previously approved by both the President and the Congress.

As regards cruisers, that policy is—

"In order to support the fleet and protect our commerce, to replace all old cruisers with modern cruisers of 10,000 tons displacement carrying eight-inch guns, in addition to build cruisers at a rate that will maintain effective cruiser tonnage in conformity with the capital ship ratios as established by the Washington treaty limiting naval armament."

It now appears that the London naval treaty was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of Admiral Jones, who accompanied the American delegation, and by reason of his previous command of the fleet, presidency of the general board and participation in the Geneva conference as President Coolidge's delegate, was the ablest naval adviser for the delegation that the navy could provide.

It was negotiated in utter violation of the unanimous and unconditional recommendations of the General Board of the Navy, our highest and most independent naval authority.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of the president of the Naval War College, who accompanied the delegation as a naval expert, but was allowed to appear before the delegation only once.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of the next Commander-in-Chief of the United States fleet, upon whom would devolve the burden of supreme command afloat should trouble come during the next few years.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the preponderant opinion of our highest naval authorities.

A treaty thus negotiated is an insult to the intelligence of the American people and a disgrace to the administration that submitted it to the Senate.

POLICE SEIZE 80 GALLONS OF ALCOHOL IN DAY RAID

Special Details, Armed With Axes, Are Prepared for Swift Action Tonight

The police this afternoon opened their drastic drive on liquor and vice dens.

While headquarters was completing preparations for many raids tonight, Capt. Perley Skillings of Division 2, with Sergts. Gilman and McAuliffe, visited a basement in Hanover st. and carried away with them the steel-barred doors after finding no liquor.

Capt. Archibald Campbell of Division 7 led a detail to Sumner st., East Boston, where a door was pushed in but no contraband found.

Charlestown police were more fortunate, seizing 80 gallons of alcohol in a tenement in Washington st.

All the captains expected to make further raids tonight, together with other division commanders.

SPECIAL DETAILS READY

Specially equipped police details were ready in nearly all Boston stations today for a concerted descent on liquor and vice dens tonight.

Armed with axes and sledge hammers, and in some instances to be led personally by captains who fear another surprise visit from Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman, the squads awaited nightfall.

Tonight Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay, known in the department as commander of the "Immaculate Division," was prepared to start new activities although claiming his district is clean.

Sergt. Di Sessa and a squad will visit public night clubs, cafes and hotels to see that there are no violations of the law.

ARMED WITH AXES

Capt. Herbert F. Goodwin of Division 4 is holding 12 men, armed with axes and sledges, for a series of raids.

Divisions 3 and 5 were reported ready for the evening, and in the latter division two officers will be sent to each dance hall to watch for "hippers."

Brighton Boy Is Cleared of Arson

Gerhardt W. Lang, 10, son of Gerhardt D. Lang of Commonwealth ave., Allston, was arraigned before Judge Brown in the juvenile session of Brighton court today and found not guilty of delinquency in connection with the alleged setting of a fire. He was arrested on May 16 by Inspector Haggerty of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation after an investigation of alleged incendiary fires at 135 Colburne rd. and 10 Lothian rd., both in Brighton. The boy's mother declared he could not have set the fires because he was at home all day.

DR. ECKENER MAY TRY GROUND LANDING AT RIO DE JANEIRO

PLANS OF 4TH LEG OF TRIP IN DOUBT

Winds Will Decide Question of Stopping at the Capital, Without Mooring Mast

(Radio Dispatch)

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, en route to Rio de Janeiro, May 24—The Graf Zeppelin was roaring southward toward the Brazilian capital early today.

At 11:37 p. m. (10:37 p. m., E. D. T.) last night, Dr. Hugo Eckener gave the command that released the huge dirigible from its red and white steel mooring mast at Jequaia Air Field, Recife, and the veteran of the air tilted its nose skyward.

Dr. Eckener said that since there are no mooring facilities at Rio he would let the atmospheric conditions determine whether we would make a ground landing there. He expects that we shall be back to Pernambuco by Monday.

Although it was 11:37 p. m. when the engine crews were cast loose the official starting time entered in the Zeppelin's log book was 11:52 p. m. This was the time that the Graf was finally well clear of the mooring mast actually on the way from Pernambuco toward Rio De Janeiro.

"We don't know just what the weather is south of here, but we shall find out for ourselves," remarked Hugo Lehmann as I came aboard shortly before the takeoff.

Two members of the Zeppelin's crew were slightly burned in a small gasoline fire prior to the takeoff. They were treated aboard the ship by Dr. Jeronimo Meglax, King Alfons of Spain's physician, and reported not serious.

Fritz Hammer, who is the head of the Condor airline from Pernambuco to Rio, is the only new passenger to come with us.

Above the rising crescendo of the motors came the cheers of the excited Brazilians who Thursday night gave us an amazing welcome. For a few minutes the passengers could follow the surging roar of their farewell ovation, but soon, as the motors gathered speed, we were again beyond the world — alone in the stillness of the humid night.

Thirty minutes after the Graf started skyward, we were passing above the last twinkling lights of the city.

Shortly after the takeoff, Dr. Eckener declared that he expected to make the run to Rio in 18 hours. Whether or not we will make a brief side trip to Sao Paulo before returning to Pernambuco has not been definitely settled.

Preparations before midnight for flight came off smoothly. The passengers had been apprised well beforehand of the starting time and by 11:29 o'clock all of them had motored to the field from their hotels and boarded the ship.

Dr. Eckener, himself, was on the field by 10:30 p. m. He was accompanied by the German consul at Pernambuco. When the vast crowd that had gathered to watch the departure caught a glimpse of the grizzled commander there was a tumultuous demonstration.

So great was the press about him that Dr. Eckener had difficulty in making his way to the mooring mast.

Refueling of the dirigible was finished shortly after dusk. Several thousand quarts additional of mineral water were placed aboard and fresh vegetables and meat added to the larder. By the time Dr. Eckener arrived on the field everything was ready for the start.

ROAR FAREWELL
Lights Cut Darkness as Graf Rises

As the Zeppelin rose from the field the searchlights torn the night apart, pointing silver fingers of light toward our goal in the southward. They gleamed along the silver sides of the giant ship as she slowly sidled into the air.

Gay Janeiro Planning Great Holiday for Zepp

Rio de Janeiro, May 24—This gay metropolis of South America—rival of Buenos Aires and Havana for the cognomen of "Paris of the Western Hemisphere"—made ready today in a spectacular fashion for the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin.

Rio resembled a city on the verge of a great national holiday. About the only place that was not crowded was the vantage points on the perpendicular sides of Sugar Loaf Mountain. The top, reached by cable car, was "sold out." It represented the finest vantage point for sighting the Graf in the city.

If the Graf Zeppelin, now flying southward from Pernambuco, is unable to land here, three passengers who had intended boarding it here for the voyage back to Lakehurst and Havana will be placed aboard airplanes, which will bring them here, where they can embark. These three passengers are William B. Leeds, American millionaire, who came to Brazil as an to fly back in the Graf; J. H. Durrell, connected with the National City Bank, and Valentine Bueno, Brazilian business man.

Showered with coins by an unidentified man on the roof of an apartment house at Bowdoin and Ashburnham pl, Beacon Hill, last night, a throng of youngsters created temporary pandemonium in a scramble for the money.

JOHNSON SEES 'REPUDIATION' OF TREATY

Declares People Will Kill Naval Pact if Given Time to Understand It

Washington, May 24—Answering the demand of President Hoover for immediate consideration of the London naval limitations treaty, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, said today the American people would "overwhelmingly repudiate" the pact if given time to understand it thoroughly.

His statement read:

"I think the sponsors of the treaty are entirely right from their viewpoint in rushing the treaty, for if time be given the American people to thoroughly understand it, it will be overwhelmingly repudiated."

Senate leaders were generally agreed, however, that the notice given yesterday by President Hoover that he would call a special Senate session for disposition of the treaty if it were not acted upon before adjournment meant an early decision.

It is generally conceded, even by the foes, that the votes are in the Senate for ratification.

Meanwhile the State Department has initiated discussions looking toward an exchange of notes between the United States, Great Britain and Japan to clarify the controverted ship replacement clause of the pact.

HOOVER ANGERS SENATORS

Opponents of the treaty point out that eight out of ten admirals and naval experts who have been called before the two committees have objected vigorously to its terms, holding that it does not insure parity with Great Britain, and that the United States sacrificed at London the right to build the type of ships best suited to American needs.

"I think they have put up an unanswerable argument," said Senator Johnson.

"Why the need for all this hurry?" asked Senator George (D) Georgia. "Are we not to be allowed to look thoroughly into a matter that so vitally affects American defense? Is it to be rushed through?"

Other opponents of the treaty echoed the questions of the Georgian. They asked what was the particular need of the Senator rushing its action when the other signatories, Great Britain and Japan, did not appear in any hurry to ratify.

HOLDS WHIP-HAND

Nevertheless, the President appeared to hold the whip-hand. He can, if he chooses, keep the Senate in session all summer, which is something that no Senator, whether he is up for re-election or not desires. The Senate has been in almost continuous session since December, 1928, and there is an almost schoolboy desire to get away.

Port Darwin, North Australia, May 24 (AP)—Miss Amy Johnson, pretty 23-year-old British girl flier, reached this city today from Atamboea, Timor, after a flight of 400 miles across the Timor Sea.

In so doing she completed in 19 days a solo flight from Croydon, England. She left there May 5, hoping to beat Hinkler's 15-day flight record from England to Australia, but bad weather and accidents delayed her in the latter stages of her trip, and she fell behind her schedule after flying two days ahead of it for much of the journey.

She made a spectacular landing at the ally field here. Three planes from Brisbane and one Dutch seaplane escorted her from far out over the sea to this port.

Government officials were among those greeting the girl, who appeared a bit tired. When the official ceremony was over they hurried her off in a motorcar to Government House, where she will be the guest of the North Australian Government during her stay here.

She was very brown from the sun, and quite deaf after the long hours behind the roaring motor of her plane. She was dressed in khaki shorts and puttees and wore a green sun helmet. She said the flight over the sea from Timor was uneventful except for the heavy wind.

Miss Johnson's Parents Flooded With Messages

Hull, England, May 24 (AP)—An anxious father and mother and two sisters received with great relief advices today of Miss Amy Johnson's safe arrival in Australia after her flight from England.

They had remained up all night, waiting for news of the girl. Pride in their daughter's achievement as the first woman to make a solo flight from England to Australia was intensified by hundreds of congratulatory messages to the parents and by visits from neighbors.

SAYS EUROPE IS PREPARING FOR NEW WAR

New York Publisher Finds the Nations Imbued With the Spirit of Nationalism

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

New York, May 24—Europe is preparing for another war. Statesmen are talking peace, peace, peace, but the common people are thinking in terms of intense nationalism.

The general feeling in Europe is that the London Naval Conference was a "flop."

These are the grim impressions brought back from Europe today by Horace Liveright, well-known publisher, who talked to the heads of various governments and "felt the pulse" of the common people.

"Everywhere I went the feeling seemed to be that another war is inevitable," said Liveright, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"In each country I visited the people seemed to feel that they had to be the ones to be ready for the next struggle.

"The horrors of the great war appeared to be completely forgotten."

Liveright visited France, Germany, England and the Scandinavian countries.

APPALLED BY NATIONALISM

"I was never so appalled at the intense spirits of Nationalism manifest," he said.

"The cabinet members with whom I talked chatted of peace, but the measurement of their conversation was by the yardstick of nationalism.

"But one obtained even a better feel of the situation from the man in the street—the taxi driver, the hotel porter, the worker.

"France hates everybody. She is insanely jealous of the United States.

"Germany is not supposed to have an army, but I have every reason to believe that every able-bodied youth in Germany is getting military training. Every young boy there is a member of a hunting club. They drill regularly and practice shooting and the League of Nations can't do a thing about it.

"Germany is hungry to get back what she has lost.

ENGLAND MOST PACIFIC

"And Scandinavia is the outstanding example of burning nationalism.

"To Danes hate the Norwegians and the Swedes, the Swedes hate Norway and Denmark, and Norway hates Sweden and Denmark.

"Norway is changing her language as rapidly as possible so that their daily literature will not have any Swedish or Danish flavor.

"England is the most pacific of all the countries I visited."

Liveright said C. J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian Parliament and Norway's representative to the League of Nations, was the outstanding proponent for international peace in Europe today.

Regarding the naval conference, Liveright said:

"Everyone seemed to feel that the conference was a flop. I did not talk to anyone, statesman or hotel worker, who didn't consider it was a failure.

"Of course, the statesmen always modified their statement in adding that the conference was a step in the right direction."

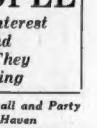
Mrs. Saltonstall and Party Fly to North Haven

When a large Ireland amphibian plane left the ground, circled the East Boston Airport and headed northeast for the coast of Maine yesterday it carried aboard Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, widow of the well - known Boston attorney.



A accompanying Mrs. Saltonstall on the flight to North Haven were Mrs. George Lewis, Mrs. Floyd Y. Thompson and Mrs. Saltonstall the latter's four-year-old son, Frederick, who already has developed a great liking for flying.

Weather conditions were not considered promising when the party left the airport, with a freshening breeze from the northeast promising a head wind the entire flight, but with Harold Moon of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service at the controls Mrs. Saltonstall said she would be in North Haven in a couple of hours.

Portrait Just Suits Tallulah Bankhead

London, May 24—Miss Tallulah Bankhead, the American actress, whose portrait by Augustus John in the Royal Academy has disappointed her fans," has given her own opinion of the much discussed canvas.

Tallulah Bankhead

"I worship it!" she cried. "I think it's divine!"

Miss Bankhead insists that in some of the parts she has played she looks very much as she is in the portrait.

"And, after all, people would get sick of looking at a portrait of a very pretty face; they simply wouldn't be able to endure it," she added.

"Seriously, I love the portrait. It is myself as I am."

Bishop Hafey Hits Mania for Divorce

Asheville, N. C., May 24 (AP)—Divorce is leading to a "sex mania which is gripping the minds of the younger generation," said the Rt. Rev. William J. Hafey, bishop of Raleigh, in addressing the Catholic Press As s a ociation here tonight.

"If today America is troubled by the flood of divorces which is shattering the home," the divine contended, "it is the Catholic press alone which can point to the remedy for this ingenously inform the State that it may not dissolve 'what God hath joined together.'" quest of the German colony. The information being given out by the Correio Damanha at Pernambuco. The Graf is scheduled to reach Rio after midnight, but there was no indication whether a landing would be made.

Rio Grande Do Sul is approximately 875 miles southwest of Rio Janeiro by airline. Following the coast line, however, and passing over Sao Paulo, where there is a German colony, on the way, however, will probably extend the trip to the Brazilian capital by 1000 miles.

Curley Now Wearing Richard Croker's Tammany Pin

Mayor Curley today proudly wears on his vest, hidden by his coat, the insignia of the grand sachem of Tammany Hall, a valuable pin in black and gold, with the famed tiger's head in the center.

This pin was worn for 25 years by the late Richard Croker, who ruled over Tammany for a generation.

It was given to the mayor yesterday as he was leaving Sleepy Hollow Cemetery in Concord after burial of his friend, George E. Phelan.

The donor was Alfred Morrell of New York who was one of the pallbearers. Morrell said he was impressed by the mayor's loyalty to a friend.

WAR VETS HOLD POPPY DRIVE

More than 1300 World War veterans and women of the auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars began at sunrise today the ninth annual Buddy Poppy drive in Greater Boston.

Stationed at the railroad terminals, subway exits, elevated stations and at strategic points along the downtown thoroughfares, the volunteer workers solicited passersby to purchase their flowers and by nightfall it is expected they will have disposed of the 200,000 poppies allotted for sale in Boston.

The collections contributed today will go to the relief of ex-service men and their dependents, or for the widows and orphans of those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Steam Calliope Aids Drive in Everett

The strains of a steam calliope today drew the attention of Everett citizens to the poppy drive being conducted by the Lieut. Joseph H. Webber Post, of Veterans of Foreign Wars in that city. Drawn by automobile, the wheezy relic of circus days made its first stop at City Hall to serenade May Michael C. O'Neil, and then made a tour of the business thoroughfares.

Hits Himself on Shin, Has Fractured Skull

Spearfish, S. D., May 24 (AP)—William Huff hit himself on the shin with a hammer yesterday and awoke in a hospital with a fractured skull.

He was pounding on a wall in Spearfish Canyon, when the hammer slipped, missed its target and smacked him in the shin. Huff, who is 13, fainted, rolled down an eight-foot bank and struck his head on a lead pipe. His condition is serious.

50 STAB EACH OTHER ON SHIP

Paris, May 24 (AP)—A dispatch from Jeddah, Arabia, to the Petit Parisien today said that 50 Moslem pilgrims aboard the burning steamer Asia in Jeddah harbor Wednesday, cut one another's throats rather than face death in the blaze.

Their act, the dispatch, purporting to be an eyewitness account of the disaster, which is now said to have taken 200 lives, took place at the foot of the companionway, and before the cry "sauve qui peut!" or "everybody for himself!" was heard.

Blood flowed as if at a sacrifice. Dead bodies blocked the exit and prevented others in the dining salon from praying with their faces toward Mecca.

U. S. Agents Raid 2 N. Y. Beer Gardens

New York, May 24 (AP)—Two of the most popular beer gardens in Yorkville were raided by Federal prohibition agents last night. The agents said that one of these attractions was beer and ale of more than legal alcoholic content.

Help Those Who Helped

ETTA GAFFEN EVELYN PERRY

On thousands of corners and at leading points in Greater Boston workers were found early today selling poppies in aid of disabled war veterans. The drive got a fast start and promises to be a huge success, with good weather to aid. At the South Station Etta Gaffen, with "tin hat," sold a poppy to Evelyn Perry of Needham as she hurried from her train. (Staff photo.)

SEIZE $50,000 IN HUB RUM

Portsmouth, N. H., May 24—More than $50,000 worth of liquor was seized on a Boston-bound truck here today by federal and state prohibition agents, who arrested the driver, William A. Boyer of Beck st., Newburyport.

The five-ton truck was loaded to capacity when it swung into South st., near the Portsmouth Hospital, and the trap laid by the agents.

Boyer is a brother of Louis Boyer, arrested a month ago in connection with a $300,000 seizure at Newburyport.

He stopped when he saw the road blocked by a squad of agents led by Federal Inspector Austin P. Ellingwood and said he was bound for Boston with the load.

He was taken to Portsmouth for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner J. T. Waldron and the liquor was taken to a Concord storehouse.

The truck carried more than 500 cases, the labels on the bottles showing them to be assorted liquors of the choicest brands.

WOMAN LEADER HELD IN INDIA

Delhi, India, May 24 (AP)—Mrs. Satyavati, leader of the "Lady Volunteers," was arrested today by the police on an order to give security to cease dissemination of sedition. She is the fourth woman to be arrested by the government from among the feminine leaders of the civil disobedience campaign.

Nank Chand, styled, a member of the "depressed classes," today was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment on a conviction of sedition.

Indian Nationalists today observed "Dharasana Day," making it an occasion to celebrate "victory" there against British police and armed forces, and of mourning for those arrested in the raids against the salt pans.

A partial hartel, or stoppage of work, was in effect in most of the native city. The usual daily raids against the Wadala salt pans were suspended, but will be resumed tomorrow, it was understood.

CHELSEA OPENS FETES SUNDAY

A singing contest, such as probably has never before been heard in this country, will be one of the five major attractions of the Chelsea tercentenary observance of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, beginning tomorrow and continuing for two weeks.

This event will be the international choral festival of singing organizations in which more than 20 different nationalities in Chelsea will compete in their native costumes for valuable prizes in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, June 2.

George A. Paine is chairman of the committee arranging this festival of human voices striving for musical perfection without the aid of instruments.

This festival will be one of many features wherein the wonderful contributions to the development of our state and nation is demonstrated by the later day Pilgrims from other shores.

Chelsea will also observe the tercentenary of the establishment of the Great and General Court, the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the present constitution of Massachusetts and the 155th anniversary of the battle of Chelsea Creek, one of the decisive victories for the colonists during the Revolution.

Special tercentenary services in all the churches tomorrow will open the observance.

FIRES 6 SHOTS INTO HIS WIFE

New Bedford, May 24—Albert LaPlante, 36, of Paulina st., is under arrest here on a murder charge on his confession that he fired six shots at his wife, Anna, 43 while she was hunting wild flowers in a clump of woods just over the city line in Dartmouth.

LaPlante gave police directions where to find the body when he surrendered at the Weld sq. station, tossed a gun on a desk, and informed Lieut. Norbert R. Brault of the killing.

He said his wife was searching for woods flowers when he drew the revolver and emptied the contents into her body.

When questioned, LaPlante alleged his wife had spent $3500 of his money on luxuries and that they had been quarreling constantly over financial matters.

LaPlante declared the shooting took place near a clearing in the woods where he and his wife had cultivated a garden and where they were accustomed to go every morning to work on their flowers.

When the LaPlantes were married two years he had two children by his first wife and she was the mother of three children by her first marriage. One of her daughters is Mrs. Agnes Aylia, 18, of New York.

LaPlante told police he took the four children to the home of a relative after the killing.

In his first statement, he declared his wife had asked him to kill her and afterwards kept repeating to his questioners, "You'd have done the same thing."

MILTON GAINS 74 PER CENT

The census of Milton was announced today as 16,297 an increase of 7015 or 74.7 per cent.

The populations of Walpole and Holliston showed increases during the past ten years, according to an announcement by the census supervisors today.

The figures for Walpole were: 1920, 5446; 1930, 7273, and for Holliston, 2707 in 1920 as compared with 2861 in 1930. There were 62 farms in Walpole and 89 in Holliston.

There were 93 unemployed in Ward 5, Revere, on the day preceding the visit of the census enumerator.

Milk Wagon Driver Is Injured by Auto

Charles O. Wilson, 52, of Gordon st., Hyde Park, a milk wagon driver, was injured today when struck by an automobile in River st., Hyde Park.

He is in City Hospital suffering from a fractured nose and a fractured right elbow, and contusions of the scalp. Walter J. Bulkins of Lexington ave., Hyde Park, operator of the auto, was arraigned in West Roxbury Court on a charge of drunkenness. His case was continued to June 4.

Legislators Think of Home as Empty Boxes Appear

Senators and representatives on Beacon Hill were all smiles today when attaches began the annual task of piling up empty boxes in the State House corridors.

These boxes will be filled with each member's personal effects and shipped to his home.

As the returns of the birds each year is to the average citizen the sure sign of spring, so the boxes are to the solons the promise of an early prorogation.

SAY CHILDREN CRASHED WALL

That the collapse of a wall at the old Morton st. playground which caused the death of Jackie McGonigle, 13, of 37 Cooper st., North End, was caused by children running on it, was the official explanation today of the crash which also injured two other boys.

The statement was made by Park Commissioner William P. Long and Building Commissioner Edward W. Roemer following a conference with Mayor James M. Curley.

Commissioner Long said:

"The wall was built in 1917, and there were no defects in its construction. The children of the district used the pagonda-type roof for a race track. The building commissioner after a careful inspection advises against this type of construction in the future.

"A contractor has started to tear down the remaining part of the wall.

"On the Prince st., playground two weeks ago the same type of construction was determined to be dangerous and the contractors are removing that."

Commissioner Long said the playground was inspected regularly and that the last report, made about a week ago, showed everything in satisfactory condition.

WAR MOTHERS IN LONDON

London, May 24 (AP)—Waving American flags, 158 Gold Star mothers and 116 veterans of the 27th division arrived in London today on a pilgrimage to the graves of their sons and "buddies" who are buried in England.

Most of the veterans, who fought with the Fourth British army at Ypres and on the Somme, today were returning to the scene of their war activities for the first time since the armistice. Virtually all of the mothers were making their first trip abroad. Eight gold star fathers, who are with the party, were almost lost in the excitement of the reception.

Bill to Aid Widow of Santiago Hero

Washington, May 24 (INS)—Every schoolboy remembers the gallant remark of an American naval officer during the battle of Santiago: "Don't cheer, boys, the poor devils are dying."

Admiral John T. Phillips, who commanded the battleship Texas, was the man. His widow has been in straitened circumstances. Today a bill sponsored by Representative LaGuardia (R.) of New York is pending in the House to give her a pension of $300 a month for the duration of her life.

Coach to Be Wed in Pitcher's Box

Lowell, May 24—Unless weather conditions interfere or some other reason develops for a change in plans, Waldo W. (Rusty) Yarnell, Textile Institute coach, and Miss Lillian F. Ryder of 45 St. Alban's rd., Boston, will be married on the pitcher's mound of the Textile campus late today, where the local nine will play the Newport Naval Training team.

SULLIVAN TO BE EJECTED

The controversy over the commercial parking venture of John A. Sullivan at Pinckney st. and Embankment rd., Beacon Hill, may end with the ejection of Sullivan Asst. Corp Counsel Leo Schwartz said today.

According to Schwartz, he was informed by telephone by Francis W. Paine, trustee of the William A. Paine estate, owners of the property, that he did not want the parking enterprise on the property if it were objectionable or illegal and promised to eject Sullivan.

Schwartz will await notification to this effect in writing and will not proceed with court action if he receives it.

Among the Beacon Hill residents who protested against the parking venture was Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, wife of the explorer.

NEWS, VIEWS AND GOSSIP OF SOCIETY IN AND ABOUT GREATER BOSTON

Gala Event Is Post-Debs' Party

Colorful Scene at Del Monte's as Young Folks Attend Subscription Dance

SUMMER EVENIN cars parked in shadow music playing in the distance lights softly gleaming throug the trees, sounds of laughter faint scent of perfume and cigarettes, doors open and the dance is on at Del Monte's, where the post-debs' subscription party took place last night.

THERE IS NO MORE AT TRACTIVE or quiet spot near Boston, the circular ballroom jutting out over the rocks and the sea, the beautiful rock-garden set up with tiny tables for a wee bite and maybe a drink—fruit punch of course, balloons like variegated clouds drifting idly here and there through the softly lighted dance hall, orchestra perfect, beautiful girls charmingly gowned swaying in the arms of stalwart boy-friends and all of youthful society turned out to have just the time of their lives.

SUCH A BEVY OF LOVELY girls—Winefred Thorndike in turquoise blue, always so nice and friendly; Helen Curtis, a picture an artist would do well to paint with her gorgeous red hair and Kelly green gown; Sally Wamboldt so sweetly saucy in jade green splashed with black and white flowers; Anne Burrage (Mrs. Albert Burrage, Jr.) regal in frosty green lace and orchids of course, like huge white butterflies hovering on her shoulder; Rosamond Holton trying to look demure because she has a white gown on; vivid Virginia Taylor in red printed chiffon, and Phyllis Ellsworth attempting to hide in a dark printed crepe but very unsuccessfully.

THEN THERE WAS CAROLINE READ in black taffeta and net, Mary Buttrick nonchalant in flowered taffeta with tiny ruffle-trimmed cape, Betty Moulton Hubbard looking as girlish as ever in dark-flowered chiffon and more of the Burrage orchids, little blonde Kay Brown in rose taffeta, Barbara Wendall quite happy in her green print, and so on—all of social register and a number of out of town guests for good measure. Many guests arrived late as there were numerous dinner parties before the dance, supper was served at 1 o'clock and the party broke up around five, then a wonderful drive back to town as the May dawn is breaking over the sea.

Club Women to Have New Quarters

Executive Board Meetings of State Federation to Be Held at Y. W. C. A.

By NANCY BREWSTER

When Bay State clubwomen resume their activities in the fall, they will execute them in a different "home." The Hotel Vendome, which for years has housed the executive board meeting, department sessions and the institutional Club Institutes, has outgrown its usefulness for the growing State Federation and next season the parent body moves to the Young Women's Christian Association building in Clarendon st.

The change is made for need of larger quarters, announcement comes from headquarters. Several rooms will be given over for group meetings and the Club Institutes will have ample seating capacity for its fast-growing audience.

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, president of the Federation, will preside over the monthly meetings when they begin next October, continuing through May. The final board meeting of the current season has been called for next Wednesday at 1 p. m. and will be held at Federation headquarters, 687 Boylston st., preceded by a meeting of division chairmen at 11 a. m.

Republican Women to Elect New Slate of Officers Monday

When Republican women pour into headquarters, 46 Beacon st., next Monday to poll their votes for the president of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, they will find at the head of the ballot, Miss Katherine V. Parker, of South Lancaster, whose name has been submitted by the nominating committee for the presidency.

The club will hold its eighth annual meeting and election on that day at the clubhouse, the voting continuing from 10 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. The annual meeting is scheduled for 10:30 a. m. at which time yearly reports of all club officers and county will be read.

Others on the ballot for election with Miss Parker are: Mrs. William M. Butler, first vice-president; Mrs. William H. Coolidge, second vice-president; Mrs. H. Addington Bruce, vice-president for four years; Mrs. Frank G. Allen, vice-president for four years; Mrs. William S. Mitchell, vice-president for four years; Mrs. Joseph Woods, vice-president for four years; Mrs. George W. Perkins, secretary; and Mrs. Frank M. Blair, treasurer. Mrs. William E. Chenery and Mrs. W. G. Curtis are on the ballot as members of the nominating committee for 1931.

Mrs. J. J. Storrow to Entertain May 30 at Her Lincoln Farm

On the calendar of activities at the Women's City Club, May 30, has been set aside as "Memorial Day at Storrow Farm." The invitation being advanced to the club members by Mrs. James J. Storrow, former president of the club, club hostess and chairman of the week-end committee.

Buses will leave the clubhouse, 40 Beacon st., promptly at 10:30 a. m. for Lincoln and Mrs. Storrow's farm, returning at 6 p. m. Members only are invited.

Barnstable Women's Club to Hold Annual Banquet on Monday

Barnstable Woman's Club, way down on the Cape, will hold its annual banquet next Monday at the Barnstable Inn, 6:30 p. m. In lieu of after-dinner speeches, after-dinner reports by club officers and committee chairman will be the thing. Miss Annie Gorham Hinckley, president, will preside. Barnstable Woman's Club was organized in 1922, admitted to the State Federation the same year and to the General Federation of Women's Clubs three years later.

Federation Leaders to Leave June 2 for Denver Conference

"On to Denver" and the biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, June 5 to 14, is the paramount issue and interest of the moment in club circles not only in this state but throughout the country and wherever clubwomen hold sway. Close upon the wave of enthusiasm which attended the state meeting at Swampscott, many more reservations were checked off with Mrs. Ernest R. Brackett, transportation chairman, bringing the total of clubwomen who will sooon wend their way westward close to 100.

Distinguished leaders in the party which is to leave Boston Monday, June 2 at 4:15, include Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, Mrs. Arthur Devens Potter, Mrs. Axel A. Packard, Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith, Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth, Mrs. Charles L. Fuller, Mrs. Walter T. Spencer and Mrs. Frederick M. Prescott.

Mrs. Edith Levinstein Heads Auxiliary of Mass. S. P. C. A.

At the annual meeting of the woman's auxiliary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Mrs. Edith Washburn Levingtsn was elected president. Others were Mrs. Alfred Hurlburt, first vice-president; Mrs. Howard W. Woodward, second vice-president; Mrs. William J. McDonald, third vice-president; Mrs. A. J. Forbush, treasurer; Miss Helen Potter, recording secretary; Mrs. Marion Nicholson, corresponding secretary.

Arrangements were made for the annual outing day of the auxiliary at Methuen, the Rest Farm; also plans for the fair day in the fall. Mrs. M. F. Herbett was hostess of the social hour which followed the meeting.

New Arrangement in Manual Listing of Federation Boards

When the manual of the State Federation makes its bow later in the summer, one innovation that will be noted will be the rearrangement of the listing of committees, conforming to the General Federation arrangements. Recent appointment of the advisers to direct the activities of the State Federation for the coming year brings out this change. Departments will hereafter signify the general grouping with sub-committees known as divisions.

For instance, it will be the department of fine arts, including the divisions of art, music and literature.

Advisory chairmen who have been appointed are: American citizenship, Mrs. Herman A. Harding; American home, Mrs. Charles L. Fuller; education, Mrs. John H. Kimball; fine arts, Mrs. Charles G. Wetherbee; international relations, Mrs. Axel A. Packard; legislation, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr.; press and publicity, Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth; public welfare, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader; club institutes, Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, who will also serve as chairman; junior membership, Mrs. Bennett; special committee, Mrs. Frederick A. Davis.

Mrs. Harding is to be chairman of Federation extension; Mrs. Bennett of finance, Mrs. Kimball of headquarters, as well as official representative to the New England Council.

Intricate Details Distinguish Wash Frocks

BLACK GEORGETTE, an ideal medium for this smart dinner frock from Maggy Rouff. Fluttering bow on shoulder and soft drapery at waistline. (Sketched in Paris.)

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American

Paris, May 24.

THE LITTLE washing frock lips itself into the sea of fashion that eddies about us and emerges as a shiny contender for sartorial honors. Many well known couturiers are giving nice little frocks of tub silk quite prominent representation in their summer collection as frocks of this kind offer a cool comfort that cannot be duplicated by any other material.

But there is nothing ordinary about such models, for they are cut with the same care for intricate detail that characterizes elaborate afternoon gowns. Little capes, set-in bands, diagonal piecings are some of the interesting features of these tub silk frocks many of which are offered in all sorts of facinating patterns and color schemes. And so now that the little tub silk frock has been glorified, it can take its place in the fashion parade with a surety of success.

As an eloquent testimony to the charm of the simple little summer frock as interpreted by a master designer, we offer a sketch of such a model from the showrooms of Thomas et Leon.

It is of checked tub silk and the puffed short sleeves and graceful flat cape are interesting features. By using the checked material in bias inserts, an effective contrast is obtained. The skirt has wide box-pleats formed by insets cleverly placed at intervals.

The dinner dress, this season rises to new heights of charm and distinction. Its smart simplicity and absence of any but essential details, marks it as the ideal choice of one of the true elegants who makes quiet perfection her sartorial goal. Such a frock is the model from Maggy Rouff which we had sketched for you for today's page.

Good features of this smart model include the fluttering bow on the shoulder, the soft drapery at the waistline, the soft flounce and the trailing point in back. The fabric is black georgette, an ideal medium for the smart but plain dinner frock.

TUB SILK WITH puffed sleeves carry charm in this summer frock from the showrooms of Thomas et Leon. Flat cape is interesting feature. (Sketched in Paris.)

Society Reserves Newport Quarters for Yacht Race Series

OUR PEN RACES ALONG to keep up to the latest news which is that society from along the North and South shore, north and south, are reserving space at Newport for the international cup races and that $60 a day will be the lowest price for overnight accommodations at the Inn. All yacht-loving Boston are arranging for their yachts to be at Newport, as the races will be held 12 miles off shore. The event takes place September 1 and we hear that all of the parking space has already been taken. Those who have not reserved their stands at this time will be among the cisappointed.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES JENNEY of Warren st., Brookline, are giving a large stand-up supper with dancing after the Country Club races on June 14.

at the tips of their carefully manicured digits will not be surprised to learn today of the announcement made by Mrs. Ernest F. Greef, of the betrothal of her only daughter, Helen E. M. Greeff, to Barron Collier, Jr.

For, since Helen's debut two winters ago at the fashionable Colony Club, Barron has been devoted in his attentions to Helen.

Inasmuch as the young son of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Barron Collier is not to receive his sheepskin from Yale until next month. However, the parents of the youthful couple suggested that they wait until Barron's graduation time neared before the formal tidings of the troth were made known.

Helen, who is one of the prettiest and most charming young women in the junior social set, received her preliminary education at the Brearley School. She is a sister of Charles A. Greeff and of Ernest C. F. Greeff, who is married to the former Katherine Twyford, daughter of Mrs. Henry Beaumont Twyford.

The future benedict "prepped" at St. Paul's School and is a brother of S. Carnes Collier and C. Mills Collier. His father is the head of the firm which bears his name and which controls most of the street car advertising throughout the country.

Dance to End Season of Women's Italian Club's Junior League

Members of the Junior League of the Women's Italian Club will dance their formal turns next Thursday at the annual ball at Longwood Towers, marking the final social event of the season, climaxing a brilliant record for young clubwomen. Miss Mae D'Angelo and Miss Alice Repetto have charge.

Next Tuesday evening a meeting will be held for the election of officers. The State Federation looks upon this group as a most promising group of girls who before many more years will become full-fledged and senior clubwomen, steeped in Federation principles and imbued with the desire to carry the banner of club movement into circles unfamiliar with club activity.

Marion Davies to Dedicate Theater With $1000 Prize Contest on Styles

Leaders of Films Eager to See Her in "The Floradora Girl"

Hollywood, May 24—Eddie Cantor, stage and screen star, will be master of ceremonies for the gala premier on June 4 of Marion Davies' latest motion picture, "The Floradora Girl," at the New Pantages Hollywood Theater.

Dedication of the theater will be a civic affair, with municipal and county officials, motion picture stars, and the general public participating.

The theater will be dedicated to the State of California and the ceremonies will take the better part of the day, terminating with the premiere that evening of "The Floradora Girl."

Scores of those prominent in motion pictures already have signified their intention of being present by applying for reservations.

Here are Marion Davies and Lawrence Gray as the young lovers in Miss Davies' newest starring picture, "The Floradora Girl," dressed in the dernier cri of the good old days. Do you wish to see these styles return? Miss Davies would like to know.

Style Letters Pour In

Letters in the Marion Davies style contest poured in yesterday by the thousands. Some of them follow:

Having lived for 84 years and seen all the changes in that space of time and the wonderful improvements the world has made, I feel that we must bow our heads and accept what is given us

Mary Belle Broiaski,
604 South Broadway,
Redondo Beach, Cal.

I am for the modern styles 100 per cent! I want freedom. Long dresses are not here to stay. They are just a fad. A few may continue to wear them but you may be sure they are bow-legged.

No modern girl would cover herself up like a "covered wagon" for the sake of fashion.

Eleanor Lowden,
421 W. 3d st.,
Long Beach, Cal.

Give me the old-fashioned girl every time! What more does man want in woman than the eternal feminine?

Let her shorten her skirts and I say she loses some of it. Let her cut off her hair and I say she loses more of it.

Peter Partridge,
1356 Gardner st.,
Hollywood.

Would you exchange a 1930 mind for one of the 1890's? Never! Neither would this be true of milady's adornment.

1890 was dainty—but without vigor or conviction. No daring, no discreet boldness, no fascination! The modern woman cannot afford to risk being robbed of these.

Fred C. Graham,
3607½ 7th ave.,
Los Angeles.

The old styles are best for lots of reasons. The main one is that they would bring back chivalry between the sexes.

It was the wonderful mystery of us that made men think we were finer and more noble than we are.

But why not fool them? We did once. We can again . . . if we go back to long dresses and make ourselves look less like boys and more like . . . fascinating women.

Catherine Comstock,
1580 Madison st.,
Oakland, Cal.

The short dresses for sport and street wear could not be more sensible and smart. Evening gowns, I think, should not exactly drag on the floor, but should be long, soft and clinging, suggestive of the grace and charm which is woman's rightful heritage.

May the pendulum of style stop in its backward movement!

Dana S. Yergin,
Bell Hotel, Bell, Cal.

Clothes help to build up our characters and bring forth the charm, vitality and talents we might possess. Long skirts and tight bodices kept us in our shells, but short skirts drew us out. None of us wants to tread backward but forward.

Dorothea Kline,
1317 East Florence ave.,
Los Angeles.

Heaven forbid that the present or future generations should be punished with the styles of the gay 90's, as we were. If I could live most another 60 years I would ask that if be with a medium short skirt and bobbed hair.

Mrs. Abbie C. Guthrie,
864 Eddy st., San Francisco.

We are more educated than the women in the gay 90's, and we have more advantages in all walks of life. With all these advantages, it would seem foolish for us to go back to the miseries of yesterday and adopt the wasp-like waists, the long, bundlesome leg - o' - mutton sleeves and the long skirts which had to be held up in order for the feet to have freedom enough to walk.

Doris Lloyd,
1027 West Pine st.,
Santa Ana, Cal.

At last we have attained a style that is comfortable, casual and beautiful. It is neither too tight nor too loose, too short or too long. We are as free as ever, but more graceful than we were a year ago.

The 1930 styles are the most sensible we have ever known, because they are moderate!

Mrs. W. H. Vandagriff,
226 Manhattan Ave.,
Hermosa Beach, Cal.

Maurice J. Francill, Radio Wizard, Okays the New Majestic All-Electric

AND SAYS---

"I Wish I Had Been Its Inventor"!

AND such an endorsement surely means something, coming from the man who will thrill and amaze tens of thousands of residents of Greater Boston and vicinity today, for seven consecutive days, starting at 12:15 p. m., Monday. Francill is "America's radio wizard." During his stay here he will perform many almost unbelievable feats, such as running automobiles, operating a miniature battleship, milking a real live cow and operating a trolley car without touch of human hand . . . all by just jiggling a little "magic box," or transmitter, that he holds in his hand and from which he projects the tiny wireless waves that perform such astonishing feats!

See Francill's great offering at Scollay Square Theatre—where he milks a cow, operates two autos, runs a miniature battleship and does a dozen other amazing things.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Boston, Mass., May 20, 1930.

The Standard Stores,
Executive Offices,
105 Portland St., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I want to thank you for a most enjoyable hour spent today in your radio showrooms, during which the new 1930 automatically tuned all-electric Majestic Radio, in numerous models, was demonstrated for my benefit. I very quickly found that in the new 1930 Majestic sets you have something very wonderful, indeed.

As an inventor and radio scientist, let me assure you that the 1930 Majestic receivers, as demonstrated for me, are unquestionably, in my opinion, the greatest advance in radio since the advent of the light socket set.

I want you to know that I certainly do appreciate your courtesy in placing in my hotel and theatre dressing rooms two of these wonderful sets, so that I can "bring the world to my room" and pass enjoyably the tedious waiting time between acts while I am playing at the Scollay Square Theatre, all next week, starting Monday.

The tone quality of the Majestic models also is wonderful regardless of distance, or range. My great wish on seeing it all and on listening to these sets today was that I had been the inventor of so wonderful an improvement.

Congratulations upon the fine judgment that leads The Standard Stores to sell this remarkable Majestic receiver, "mighty monarch of the air."

Very truly yours,

(Signed) MAURICE J. FRANCILL.

Don't Miss the Big Free Show Monday at 12:15 P. M., in Fort Hill Square, on the High Street side, between Oliver Street and Belcher Lane, when the wizard will operate three standard, stock model automobiles by radio—Then you'll realize why we are so proud of his selection of the new All-Electric Majestic Radio.

Majestic RADIO

Licensed under patents and applications of R. C. A. and R. C. A., also by Teletphone, Lowell & Dunmore and Hogan License Association.

"IN MY OWN HOME," says Francill, "I have a Majestic all-electric. I purchased it because it best measures up to my exacting standards of what a receiver should be. It has not failed me. It has exceeded my expectations."

THIS is the beautiful model that Francill has chosen for his hotel sitting room and his dressing room at the Scollay Square Theatre during his engagement here. It is particularly noted for its exactness of tuning, the fine sounding bass notes and the clarity and sweetness of its tone in the upper registers. The cabinets, too, are wonderful. There's a New Majestic All-Electric for every price. Unless you have a Majestic you do not own the best.

RAPID FIRE FILM FARE AT PARK

By HARRIS MORGAN

THERE HAVE BEEN gunmen aplenty on the silver screen, but there has never been one like Claude Allister in "The Czar of Broadway," new film at the Park. Mr. Allister is a long and bony Englishman, he decks himself out in evening dress, he occupies himself in preening and polishing his nails. But he is one of the best—and most unusual—gangsters ever seen in the prattling photoplays.

• • •

HIS PRESENCE alone would make "The Czar of Broadway" something out of the ordinary, but its story, its dialogue and its photography all have a touch of the original Anita from Mr. Allister, the cast, which includes John Wray, John Harron and Betty Compson, is the least important part of the picture. For story, there is the tale of a master racketeer who puts his victims on the spot until he is at last rubbed out by a barking machine gun. And this same machine-gunning is a hair-raising affair in which sound and photography co-ordinate to make one of the most exciting scenes on record. There are other excellent sequences, including one of a poker game in which the camera apparently peers through the top of the table at cards, chips and gamblers' faces.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the dialogue ranges from crispily good to abysmally bad, and the hero is a newspaper reporter whose like has never been seen on land or sea. He is, quite possibly, all that Hollywood thinks the ideal journalist should be, but actually he is so little a reporter and so little a hero that the audience are in great sympathy with the villain all the time. Of course, this is a fairly good idea, for, as a general rule, villains on screen are excellent fellows while heroes have a way of presenting themselves as highly uninteresting plaster saints.

• • •

THIS IS SO MUCH the case in "The Czar of Broadway" that the villain's death and the hero's survival are a genuine cause for regret. It would have been so infinitely better the other way around. Nevertheless, there are enough unusual and uncommon happenings in the film to stock half a dozen average photoplays, and the direction is, in the main, first class. It is true that the picture has glaring flaws, but most of those can be forgiven because of its high spots.

• • •

ON THE SAME BILL, Hoot Gibson defies the onward march of the talkies by making one of his own, an old time rattle and bang Western with plenty of excitement and plenty of powder smoke. It is called "Roaring Ranch."

Ann Corio arrives at the Old Howard on Monday as a special added attraction with the Howard's own company in "The Cherry Blossoms" burlesque. Miss Corio has been crowned "Queen of Beauties," and apart from her attractiveness she has talent that has brought her to the front. She will contribute a varied assortment of songs.

A new member of the cast is Penny "Wop" Moore, a clever Italian funmaker. Ray King, another newcomer, arrives with the highest credentials. Other favorites will be Mike Sacks, Fred Binder, "Hello Jake" Fields, Opal Oakley, Tangara, Vera Walton, Adeline Parks, Pearl Adams and a chorus of 24 Broadway beauties.

In addition to the burlesque the management offers vaudeville and pictures. The features include Archie and Gertie Falls, knockabout acrobats; Bernice and Foran, youthful hits; "The Feline Fighter," a thrilling picture; "Bishop Murder Case," with Leila Hyams; "Not So Dumb," with Marion Davies; "Joyland," a Lupino Lane feature, and the latest news. There will be a midnight Show on Thursday, May 29.

DRAMA'S GAIN IS LOSS TO JOURNALISM

Rosalind Russell, youthful favorite at the Copley Theater, got her first opportunity when she appeared in the leading role in an amateur performance of her class at the Columbia University School of Journalism. At that time Miss Russell wanted the exciting career of a newspaper reporter. But her performance in her class play revealed such outstanding dramatic talent that the next school year found her enrolled as a student at the Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Even with the stage in the offing, Miss Russell had a hard time convincing her parents that she was meant for an actress. Her father, the late James E. Russell, a state's attorney in Connecticut, was unalterably opposed to such a course. He consented to her undergraduate work with the thought that she would teach dramatics.

But before the ink was dry on her diploma a New York producer had induced her to sign for a part in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." Since that engagement Miss Russell has had a varied experience with several leading stock companies in the East.

REVERE OPENS UP TONIGHT

Several new shows, rides and other attractions will be presented at Revere Beach tonight for the first time this season. It is the official opening of the "Playground" and to mark the occasion, the amusement division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce has arranged a large display of fireworks as an added feature. C. F. Chisholm, secretary-treasurer of the amusement division, has been devoting the past few months to the assembly of new attractions.

Four new thrill rides, The Waltzer, Lindy Loop, Leaping Lena and Loff-in-the-Dark, will make their initial bow to the public tonight. Among the new shows are the Flea Circus, Clown Town, Jungo, Rose's Animals and McGinnis' Freaks. The four roller-coasters and other amusements, which go to make up the mile of midway for which Revere Beach is noted, have been redecorated and improved this year.

Torn Twixt Love and Duty

DONALD MEEK
A HOLE IN ONE! On the golf course this would be a triumph, but in "Broken Dishes" at the Wilbur this is a tragedy of a most henpecked husband.

DONALD MEEK IS AT HOME IN BOSTON

Acting is sometimes regarded among the hazardous occupations from the standpoint of steady employment, but that actors are not always subject to long periods of idleness is shown by the experience of Donald Meek, featured player in Martin Flavin's comedy, "Broken Dishes," at the Wilbur.

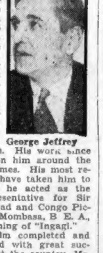
At one period Mr. Meek enjoyed 10 consecutive years of work, practically without interruption—and it happened in Boston. For a year he was a member of the stock company at the old Boston Theater, and for nine years after that in John Craig's stock company at the Castle Square Theater.

It is almost like coming home for Meek to find himself in Boston. He was married in Boston while a resident actor here, but since his stock days he has been booked to act here only a few times; in "The Hottentot," "Six Cylinder Love," and "My Princess," a musical comedy.

Due to the type system in vogue in the theater now, Meek is generally cast for parts such as the one he is playing now, a long-suffering husband dominated by a shrewish wife.

STORY-BOOK CAME TRUE

George Jeffrey, the impresario who is handling "Ingagi," the animal picture now showing at the Majestic, is a Boston boy who has had veritable story-book experience since he first left this city 15 years ago to go into the show business. After a long association as personal representative with Harold Lloyd, Mr. Jeffreys became interested in animal and travel pictures. His work since then has taken him around the world many times. His most recent journeys have taken him to Africa, where he acted as the business representative for Sir Hubert Winstead and Congo Pictures, Ltd., at Mombasa, B. E. A., during the filming of "Ingagi."



George Jeffrey

With the film completed and being exhibited with great success throughout the country, Mr. Jeffreys is acting as general manager for the film company, directing the exhibition of the picture in the East.

Dinner Planned for Samuel Pinanski

Notables of the city, State and motion picture industry will attend a reception and dinner in honor of Samuel Pinanski, to be held in the grand ballroom of the Copley-Plaza, on Thursday evening, June 5. Mr. Pinanski, who has many past achievements to his credit in the development of the motion picture and theater business in New England, was recently appointed vice-president in charge of the New England division of the Paramount-Publix Corporation.

BETTY COMPSON
MISS COMPSON is the perfect sweetheart in "Czar of Broadway" at the Park.

COAST STAR AT GAYETY

Frances Parks, with a reputation which extended the length of the Pacific Coast, will be the featured star at the Gayety for the week beginning Monday, when she will make her first Boston appearance. She will head the "Sky Rockets" company, which includes a host of other favorites.

The girl from the other side of the country wanted for a long time to appear in Boston, and Max Michaels, manager of the Gayety, made special inducements to secure the appearance of the talented young woman.

"The Dream of the Big Parade" will be the big featured number of the production. It is devoted to the men who saw service overseas and is a most colorful scene.

The list of stars in the production includes Ruth Bradley, Althea Barnes, Louise Miller, Jule Paulson, Dot Ahern, Charles (Tramp) McNally, Joe Yale, Billy Harris, Eddie Ayer and Bob Jewett. A chorus of 24 will offer new routines and specialties. Holub's Gayety jazz orchestra will also present novelties.

In keeping with the Gayety policy there will be a special midnight show Thursday night, on the eve of Memorial Day.

Plays Remaining

"Dracula" at the Hollis. (Third week.) An eerie, ghastly piece of entertainment that holds you to the end.

• • •

"Broken Dishes" at the Wilbur. (Third week.) Exactly what you think the neighbors are like. Oh, yes, yes!

• • •

Lionel Atwill in "The Ackroyd Mystery" at the Copley. (Third week.) Mystery drama in the most finished manner.

• • •

"Ingagi" at the Majestic. (Second week.) Interesting, if not faithful, dramatization of the gorilla man at his worst.

AN ORIGINAL STORY FOR BAXTER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, MAY 24.—The word star is sometimes lucky and again most unlucky. Let's hope that it proves to be a help instead of a hindrance to Warner Baxter who has done mighty well for himself without the responsibility of stardom. Naturally the Fox company felt after Warner Baxter walked away with the medal for the best male performance on the screen in 1929, he was entitled to a break. He was therefore, created a star.

• • •

WARNER'S first vehicle with all the trimmings is "Renegades," an original story by Jules Furthman dealing with the Foreign Legion. Supporting Fox's newest star are Kenneth McKenna, Mitchell Harris and J. M. Kerrigan, all of them distinct types. Victor Fleming will direct this big he-man drama which so far hasn't a solitary woman named.

HAVE YOU EVER read "The Great Meadow" by Elizabeth Maddox? I have never read it but they tell me at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer it is a best seller and that it has been purchased as a coming film story. Another thing they tell me is that Albert Richard Wetjen, the author of "Way For A Sailor" has arrived in town to lend a hand in the production of Jack Gilbert's next opera. So many different authors have been handed us for this picture that it is interesting to know that Mr. Wetjen is really the young man who did the dead, last and certainly not least, Joan Crawford again gets that young gentleman with the Southern accent for her leading man in "The Great Day."

JETTA GOUDAL has sort of disappeared from Hollywood, and it wasn't until yesterday that some of her friends learned that she had been very ill at the Chase Sanitarium for four weeks. Jetta had sold some of her household goods, stored some and even in readiness to leave for Europe when she was stricken. She is now much better and yesterday for the first time was able to see visitors.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Harold Lloyd sick at home, receiving a bouquet from his small daughter. Ben Bernie and Abe Lyman visiting Irving Aaronson and his Commanders at the Blossom Room at the Roosevelt Hotel. Ruth Roland and Ben Bard dancing in the Blossom Room. Also Alice White, Evelyn Brent entertaining a party at the Montmartre. She was guest of honor. Clara Beranger home from a visit in San Francisco. Red Grange, former popular football hero, the chief entertainer at the Sebastian Cotton Club. The John Robertsons moving to the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel. That's all today.

LOT OF STAGE MANAGER IS NOT HAPPY

The theater-going public seldom gives a thought to the stage manager, whose duty it is to see that a performance runs smoothly, with everyone and everything in its proper place. Were it not for him a play would lack cohesion and drag fearfully. In the case of such a play as "Dracula," now at the Hollis, his duties are multiplied a hundredfold.

Five hundred cues are necessary to run this play, according to Carl Reed, the stage manager. There are curtains to be raised and lowered during the action of the play; lights to flash on and off; green spots to light up Count Dracula when he makes his entrances and exits for the supernatural scenes; flashes of blinding light behind which Dracula makes his appearances and disappearances; materializations and dematerializations when he is hypnotizing people; the growling of the wolves; the spooky rustling of the draperies when the werewolf is about; chairs that turn without "human" aid.

Mr. Reed must groan and mutter in at least seven different tones. Mysterious noises operating at cues are necessary to produce supernatural effects. The only effect that puzzled Reed was the noise made by the bat. In fact, he didn't know that these vampires ever made a noise except the flapping of the wings.

Lottice Howell, former member of Roxy's Gang and of the American Opera Company, makes her film debut in "In Gay Madrid," Ramon Novarro's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical romance, at Loew's State the coming week.

Blondes Are More Deadly With Guns

Brunettes learn to shoot a gun more easily than blondes, but blondes shoot with greater accuracy. This fact developed while Lila Lee and Betty Compson were taking revolver practice in preparation for their gang roles in "Those Who Dance," at the Modern, Fenway and Scollay.

According to Los Angeles police officers, under whose tutelage the film players were learning to shoot, Miss Lee and Miss Compson ran true to form of other feminine revolver aspirants. Miss Lee, the brunette, learned to handle the gun correctly before Miss Compson, the blonde, had lost her fear of the weapon. However, once she had conquered this fear, Miss Compson's aim was much better.

BEHOLD STAR WHO SPURNS INTERVIEW

Rin-Tin-Tin, on of the most indifferent stars ever to greet an interviewer, is now playing at the Keith-Albee.

After the perfection of his performance, in addition to his superb beauty of body and intelligence of face, his absolute indifference to adulation is amusing. His politeness is only negative. Patting draws forth no sign, but at a word from Lee N. Duncan, his trainer, he immediately evinces interest and presents a paw. There are few words passed between master and dog, yet there is a depth of understanding between them which seems almost uncanny.

Rin-Tin-Tin has led a Spartan existence, which does not mean, however, that he has been ill-treated.

"If Rin-Tin-Tin became fat and lazy his career would be over, just as with other screen stars," said Mr. Duncan. "His routine is simple but never interrupted, and he has never been permitted to get a swelled head."

Mr. Duncan smiled affectionately, and Rin-Tin-Tin's jips fell apart, as he evidently smiled back.

Old Mexico Reset for "King of Jazz"

An exact reproduction of one of the most beautiful estates in picturesque Old Mexico was built for the setting of the "Monterey" number in "King of Jazz," now playing at the New B. F. Keith's.

The reproduction included the beautiful garden and limpid pool of the estate, the tropical banana and palm trees and the high walls that guard it all from curious eyes. In this gorgeous setting John Boles sings the song especially written for Universal's extravaganza by Mabel Wayne.

Dance Revue Coming to Shubert-Lyric

Mary V. Corbett, of musical comedy fame, will present a dance revue in two acts, with a company of 400 youthful dancers, at the Shubert-Lyric on Monday evening, June 9.

Miss Corbett and her sisters, Kay and Peggie Corbett, have arranged a striking program of the latest and most startling innovations in stage dancing. One of the features will be a specialty entitled the Tercentenary Ballet.

Night Cruises for Visitors to Hub

Steamer King Philip, Rebuilt, to Be Used for Moonlight Harbor Trips

Moonlight cruises around historic Boston harbor will be started on Memorial Day for tercentenary visitors and others.

The sturdy old King Philip, rebuilt to hold 310 people, has been purchased by Howard V. Redgate from Gen. Edward L. Logan. A schedule of unique trips has been announced by Mr. Redgate.

Capt. Martin F. Thompson, former master of a quarantine boat, has been engaged as skipper of a crew of a dozen. The ship is being remodelled for dancing, as well as for fishing and other sports. A radio broadcasting room, with eight loudspeaker horns, has been installed with control in the pilot house.

This control will be for announcements regarding such historic centers as the Navy Yard, airport, Deer Island, Castle Island, Governors Island, Long Island, Nix's Mate, Paddock's Island, Ft. Warren, Shirley gut, Minot's ledge, Boston Light, Boston lightship, Hull and Nahant.

Daily and Sunday fishing trips to a point about three miles off the light-ship, will be made from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

The first night cruise will be on May 28 by a group of Boston College students. On May 29, 80 high school teachers of Reading will cruise.

Other schedules reserved include: Midnight of May 30, 300 of Young People's Socialistic League; June 5, 200 from M. I. T.; June 15, group of 350 delegates to national signcraft convention in Boston; June 29, group of 350 from Bunker Hill Council of K. of C.

Fast Ball Team

The United Fruit baseball team recently defeated the Boston Insurance Company by 8 to 1 at North Cambridge. The winning team included: Deveny, Hutchins, Desmond, Leawood, Caffrey, Kechejian, Kennedy, Reardon, Kelliher, Johnson, McNamara and Tilley. Home runs were made by Caffrey of the fruiters and Crosby of the insurance men.

Harbor Harmonizers

The editor of the Longshoreman's Gazette and his colorful harbor characters are soon to go on the air on the Boston American's radio station. Watch for an announcement soon.

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 2 No. 21

Mike Buck, the "longshoreman de luxe" has a challenge of a different sort. None of this low-brow tug-of-war or pugilistic combats for Mike. He is a talented violinist and is willing to hold a contest which we will describe as a "battle of note." Mike in particular wants to humble that famous pie eater and uke player, "Pie" Riley. Mike has a real Strad for which Joe Ryan, mayor of Jeffries Point, is understood to be offering a fabulous sum.

Bostonians Afloat

When the Leviathan sails this afternoon for Cherbourg and Southampton, among the 1300 passengers will be the misses Caroline and Anna King of Boston, on the North German Lloyd steamer Berlin, sailing from New York for European ports, among these local residents: Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Amory and Mrs. Rosalie Karin of Boston; Mrs. J. C. Stearn and Miss Stearn of Cambridge.

The Hamburg-American liner Resolute will be back in New York tomorrow after a world tour of 140 days. Among the Massachusetts people on board are:

Mrs. Louise J. Ahearn and Mrs. L. A. Clapp of Auburndale, Miss Jertrude W. Bowen of Waterford, Mrs. E. E. Jones of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howland of Cambridge, Miss Ethel Howland, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Whitten and Mrs. Frank Remick of West Newton, Mrs. Henry S. Tufts of Brookline.

More than 200 passengers will embark on the White Star line steamship Arabic when she calls at Commonwealth pier, 5 p. m. tomorrow on her way from New York to Queenstown and Liverpool.

Among the Bostonians will be Mr. and Mrs. C. A. King of 41 Commonwealth ave., Judson Haines of the United Fruit Co., Albert B. Benton, Miss Mary L. Benton, Mrs. McC. Nesbit, Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Cockett, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Laraway, Mrs. C. S. Davis, Charles C. Kelly, Miss Stefanie B. Miss Stefanie C. Kelly, Miss Sophie A. Schebell, Miss Lillian Yee, Miss Margaret Yee, Miss Nora Henry.

Lady Lily Dunbar and Mrs. J. Johnson of Liverpool, who have been visiting friends in this city, will return home on the Arabic.

Also embarking will be Miss M. Walsh and Mrs. Emma Felton of Tufts College, A. J. Gordon of Cambridge, Miss Florence Edgar Hutton, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Snelling of Nantucket, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barnes of Providence and Mrs. T. G. Hazard, Jr., of Lowell. The liner is scheduled to depart from here at 2 tomorrow afternoon.

Many Bostonians are booked to leave New York today on steamers destined for the West Indies, Central America and Europe. Among those sailing on the United Fruit Company's steamer Ulua for Havana, Cristobal and Port Limon will be Mr. Mildred B. Galloway and Miss Mary E. Holland of Cambridge.

On the Carillo for Havana, Kingston, Honduras and Guatemala ports will be Ernest T. Bantoe of Boston.

Booked for passage on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka, sailing at 11 a. m. for Cherbourg and London, are Mr. and Mrs. Grenady Browne, A. L. Ogden, Irving B. Hill-Smith and Miss Rosamond Hill-Smith of Boston.

Today's Who's Who

The subject of today's Who's Who in Boston harbor is Alfred G. Barr, manager of the foreign department of S. S. Pierce Co.

Bachrach, photo.

Alfred G. Barr

"Al" is the buyer of teas, coffee and foreign merchandise, and is certainly a busy individual.

Busy as he is, "Al" finds plenty of time for golfing or sailing around Marblehead harbor. He is one of the most popular men in the foreign trade circles here, and is a graduate of the school of Stone & Downer. He formerly was with the Cunard line.

Another of "Al's" hobbies is boosting the harbor, which he does as an executive of the live wire Foreign Commerce Club. He is one of the pioneers in Boston foreign trade.

At home Mr. Barr has two lovely houses, his daughters, Cynthia and Louise.

Diary of Modern Mariner

Today our modern mariner was trying to "fix" things at the motor registry and afterward dropped in at the Luckenbach delivery department on the upper level:

"Made an unexpected call upon Mike Condon, the efficient chief clerk. Learned that Jim "Tiny" Kelly is boosting "Hook" Lynch for featherweight champ of the pier. Frank Keenan is disputing this title. Mike Dorgan, the "best friend and severest critic" of Lynch, is standing by just as loyally as ever."

Today's Safety Rule

Some of the more reckless longshoremen should read rule No. 32 which states:

"Employes, unless in the line of duty, other than operators must not ride on cranes, tractors, electric trucks, jitneys, trailers, or their loads."

SIR JOHN FAGGE OF PEPPERELL WANTS A JOB

Dover, England, May 24 (AP)—Sir John Fagge, former handyman of Pepperell, Mass., at present baronet of Dover, wants a job.

Sir John arrived in England 10 weeks ago when he came to assume the title he inherited from his elder brother, John Charles, who died in January. He got no money from the title and he is getting bored with his role of leisured country gentleman who has to live in a boarding house.

In fact, he would like a job in London or any city in the United States except Pepperell. Sir John is sure he will return to the United States eventually.

PEPPERELL TABOO

"But not to Pepperell," he says, "for it's very different now you know. I used to work there. Now it would be different because my position has changed."

The publicity on his acquiring his title had its usual results — hundreds of letters from unknown correspondents.

"Most of them are from old maids," explained the 66 year old Baronet, "who say all they want is sympathy and understanding and love. Some of them tell me they have a little property—to go with my title, you know. But I Don't pay any attention to them."

Sir John took pains to deny rumors that he was to be married again.

"Anyway, if I do, it won't be a Pepperell girl," he said.

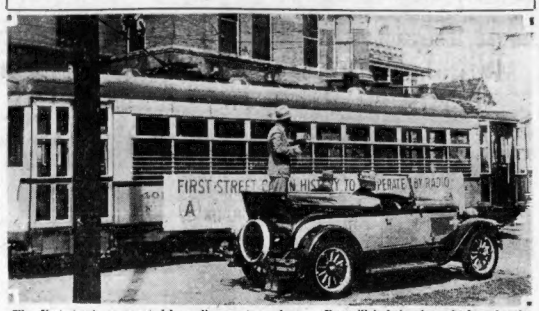
NO FANCY CLOTHES

The Baronet has refused all suggestions that he buy dinner and evening clothes. Pointing to his navy blue business suit, his light blue shirt and his stiff collar, he declared one would never recognize him as the same man who four months ago plied the trades of nurseryman, carpenter, auctioneer and housepaperer in blue denims, and canvas shoes and didn't own a white collar.

"But this is as far as I'm going," he said.

The financial difficulties of his inheritance, Sir John said, were due to the fact his brother left his estate fortune to two old servants and none to his younger brother who left home when he was 17.

Street Car Obeys Wizard's Commands



The first street car operated by radio remote control was run by Maurice J. Francill, wireless wizard, who will be in Greater Boston for seven consecutive days, starting Monday, giving exhibitions of remote control of various forms. Francill is being brought here by the Boston Evening American and the Scollay Square Olympia theater. He is shown holding his portable transmitter from which he flings the wireless waves that operate the car.

Thousands of persons are expected to gather Monday at noon in Fort Hill sq. to see Maurice J. Francill, America's "radio wizard," operate three standard, stock model automobiles by wireless control, without drivers in the cars, or touching the machines with his hands. This exhibition will mark the opening demonstration of a seven-day engagement in Greater Boston.

Francill's exhibition Monday will start promptly at 12:15 p. m. It will last about 30 to 40 minutes.

Following is the official schedule, to date, of the demonstrations in radio remote control that Maurice J. Francill, wireless wizard, will give in Greater Boston and nearby cities. Monday and Tuesday, the opening of his seven-day engagement.

MONDAY

12:15 P. M.—Opening exhibition of engagement, in Fort Hill sq.; operation of three, standard, stock model Hudson-Essex automobiles by radio control, without drivers, or touch of human hand.

1:10 P. M.-5 P. M.-8:30 P. M.—Operation of miniature battleship, operation of two standard stock model autos, milking of real live cow by radio control; other spectacular feats on stage of Scollay Sq. Olympia Theater.

TUESDAY

10:30 A. M.—Operation of radio-controlled automobiles in Haverhill st., at the Common, in Lawrence.

12 NOON—Operation of radio-controlled autos in Moody st., between Worthen and Colburn sts., at City Hall, in Lowell.

1:10 P. M.-5 P. M.-8:30 P. M.—Presentation of vaudeville offering on stage of Scollay Sq. Olympia Theater.

Francill is the headliner supreme at The Scollay Square Olympia Theater all next week, starting Monday. At each performance he will operate Hudson and Essex automobiles on the stage, milk cows, run a miniature battleship and perform other wonders of his wizardry. Don't miss his great act at Scollay Square Olympia. If you see his big free show Monday at Fort Hill Square you'll get a sample of what he will do on the stage of the Scollay Square Olympia Theater.

Once again the Hudson Eight and Essex Six Challenger are gloriously proved. The radio wave Francill uses is too small for science to measure. It is estimated to contain an actual amount of energy a million times less than the pressure of a fly's foot. Yet so perfectly balanced, so scientifically correct are the motors of Hudson and Essex stock model cars that a mite of energy, invisible of eye, that science cannot measure, will control every operation of Hudson and Essex stock model cars with the same ease and facility that chauffeurs behind the wheels employ.

GREATER BOSTON NEWS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

BOSTON, SATURDAY, MAY 24, 1930

2D SECTION

Kent Decides to 'Frame' Morgan in the Hope of Shortening His Term

"Kid, I'm leaving you tomorrow," Morgan gleefully announced to Kent as he returned to the jute mill to resume work.

In the first chapter of "The BIG House" we meet Duncan Morgan, a good-looking young man who was sent to jail for his third "stretch." Morgan was a robber. He got away with crime for a while, but the cops were too fast for him. Next we meet Dean Ward Kent. On a wild New Year's Eve party his drunken driving results in a terrible smashup. Kent is found guilty of manslaughter, as one girl was killed, and is sent to the BIG House for seven years. He is thrown into a cell with two others and is saved by Morgan from a beating by the terrible "Butch." Morgan confronts Kent. The convicts start a riot over food. Anne calls to see Kent and Morgan, ashamed, keeps out of her sight.

CHAPTER 6

Morgan turned and the guard, waiting for him, wigwagged and followed him out. He did not dare look back toward Anne Marlowe. His great fear was that she would notice him. He did not want her to see his face. She must never know he had been a jailbird.

As he passed the threshold, he met Kent coming in.

"Hello," he greeted. "Someone to see you, too?"

Kent absently looked at him and nodded. Morgan went back to his job in the jute mill; to the rhythmic spin of the big machine belt his heart sang a song.

"My old ma would be proud if she knew what her bad baby was thinkin'," he muttered through a smile.

Meantime Kent was talking through the screen to Anne.

"Dean, you look so pale and unhappy — are you sick?" Anne asked solicitously.

"Yes," growled Kent bitterly, "I'm sick—sick of it all. Sick of the food, of associates with beasts, of sleeping with vermin, of everything. Oh, Anne, I can't stand it! I'll go mad here. And you say the governor can't do anything?"

Kent Is Bitter
And Tells Anne So

"No, I saw him myself—yesterday. He was nice and polite and he said he was truly sorry for you, but that the law would have to take its course. There has been so much reckless and drunken driving—"

"I've heard, all that claptrap before. He's a hell of a governor!" snapped Kent.

"Don't talk like that, Kent," begged Anne. "I want to do everything I can for you. All your friends are helping. I didn't want to build up illusions. It will be easier for you to bear your misery if you reconcile yourself to it. Anyway, other men have lived through just what you are experiencing and they have come out to find happiness—and honor—and success—"

"Aw—you've been reading a lot of balderdash and bromides," moaned Kent. "Be practical. Do something!"

"Don't scold me, Kent. I've attempted everything I could for you. I'm not giving up hope. I'm still trying—"

"There should be some way. I hear these crooks in here telling how they beat the rap even after they were in stir—"

"Beat the rap — stir — what's that?"

"Oh, I'm beginning to talk like the rest of these morons. I mean, they managed to find some legal loophole by which to get out of prison—to cut down their sentences."

"But isn't there something you can do here—something in the way of good behavior—to cut down your own term?"

Anne Frightened
Tries to Console Kent

Kent was silent a moment.

"Yes," he began slowly, as though thinking out carefully just what he was saying. "There is a way here. There's a way to cut down the number of years. They say it's a wise way. I didn't want to try it—but I will!"

"I'm so glad!" enthused Anne, pressing her face against the screen.

"Yes, there's one way," Kent's whisper took on a more excited pitch. "And I'll do it. I'll show these cattle! Why should I spare them! You don't know what it's like here—day after day, hour after hour, minute after minute. Torture! To feel that you are confined here and can't get away—it's maddening. I can't stand it. I'll go crazy. Crazy, I tell you! No sensitive nature can endure it!"

The look in his eyes frightened Anne. She tried to console him.

"You poor boy—I'm sorry for you!—I'm fond of you. I'm waiting for you. Serve your time and come out to be an honorable man. You can live through it; you can live it down—"

A guard approached.

"Time's up." He turned to Anne. "I'm sorry, Miss.

ORDERS PROBE OF ENGLERT CHARGES

Flay Garrett Probe in House

SAWYER PINS BLAME ON DRY LAW

Legislators Refuse to Investigate Police; Birmingham Scores Warner Quiz

In a seathing indictment of the Garrett-probe, Rep. Leo Birmingham, minority leader, declared in the House today that the investigation was fruitless and that Republican "higher-ups" had been protected by Atty.-Gen. Joseph A. Warner.

Birmingham voiced his allegations during debate on a resolve by Rep. Sawyer, Ware, to substitute a motion for a committee of 13 to investigate the whole Boston police department for a motion of the House rules committee to place the report by Warner on the Garrett case on file.

The House adopted the motion of the rules committee and defeated the Sawyer resolve, 92 to 32.

SULLIVAN NOT GUARDED.

In support of the Sawyer resolve, Birmingham charged Warner had evaded his full duty in the Garrett probe and had wrecked the chances of Dist. Atty. Foley of obtaining a conviction by failing to guard John F. Sullivan after he had finished his testimony.

He ridiculed the "absurdities and trivialities" of the Warner report and declared if a legislative committee had undertaken the probe more facts would have been brought out.

"Warner should have protected Sullivan until the district attorney had finished with the case," Birmingham declared. "Warner has not been fair. The entire investigation has been a political trick.

BLAMES PROHIBITION

"The Warner report brought forth nothing. The day the report came to the House Sullivan hid himself in a sanitarium and I question whether his mental condition will pass a jury of 12 men. The Republican party cannot duck the responsibility."

Rep. Birmingham scored the rules committee for its refusal to hear former Commissioner Wilson, and charged the committee was afraid to give him that privilege.

Rep. Sawyer blamed national prohibition for the Garrett scandal.

"National prohibition," he declared, "has given law violators the working capital of millions of dollars to carry on crime, corrupt officials and build up a powerful machine.

"Boston will not cure these evils by the substitution of commissioners."

English Mayor on Way to Dorchester

Accepting the invitation of William A. Ryan and the members of the Dorchester Tercentenary committee, T. H. H. Wheeler, mayor of Dorchester, Eng., and E. W. Tilley, deputy mayor of the same city, are now en route to Boston to take an active part in the Dorchester Tercentenary.

Several months ago Mr. Ryan wrote to the English municipal officials inviting them here. He announced his action to the Dorchester committee and it was indorsed and a special representative was sent to England to offer the dignities a personal invitation to the Dorchester celebration.

Although parents protested against Herbert Rand, principal of the Pickering School, in Salem, taking their children to Boston for sightseeing, Rand just didn't know what it was to listen and on he came to Boston town. Here you see the pupils enjoying the boats in Public Garden and below what a natural sightseeing activity—eating ice cream cones.

Hub Fails to Harm Young Visitors From Salem

Right into Mayor Curley's office Principal Rand took the girls and boys from Salem. He was under orders from parents to eliminate the trip, but he came to Boston. All had a dandy time.

MAYOR TAKES NOTICE OF GOODWIN DEMAND

Thorough Investigation of the Public Buildings Head Is to Be Made

Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman announced today that at the request of Mayor Curley he would conduct a thorough investigation of John P. Englert, superintendent of public buildings, and the charges made against Englert by the Finance Commission.

The corporation counsel will call in representatives of the Finance Commission, as well as Englert and other individuals, and on the basis of these hearings will make a report to the mayor.

Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Finance Commission has made two reports charging Supt. Englert with laxity and falsification of records, and later he demanded Mayor Curley remove this department head. To this demand the mayor made no reply.

It is believed the mayor decided to have the law department conduct the investigation in view of Englert's detailed answers in the Finance Commission charges, in which he painstakingly set forth a defense to every allegation.

AIR SEASON TO OPEN MAY 30

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Memorial Day, and the week-end following, will be the grand opening for the aeronautical season for several airports in all parts of New England, according to advices received from the various ports today.

While Sound Airways, New Bedford, stole a march on the rest of the commercial operators in New England by opening their field over April 19, there are more air meets planned for this coming holiday than the Boston flyers can possibly attend.

The dedication of Bowles Airport, the new million dollar field in Springfield, tops the list, with approximately 100 airplanes attending the one-day dedication and two-day air meet.

The year-old, but hitherto 'undedicated' Beverly Airport, will join the ranks of the select on that week-end, with Harland F. Banks in the manager's role.

While Mountain Airways, at Whitefield, N. H., opens the season with a (three-day whoopee affair).

Newport Flying Club of Newport, R. I., is throwing a party at their field and will draw many ships from that section of the six states. Up at Marlboro, Harold Robbins plans to get under way and hopes to have a show on the holiday week-end.

Suspicious Fire in Church Probed

State and Cambridge fire officials today investigated a fire believed to have been set a the Cambridge Community church, on Walden st., North Cambridge, last night.

Firemen extinguished a fire on the roof of the building and then discovered a pile of oil-soaked papers burning on the ground beside the wooden structure. Part of the building was also coated with an oil substance, firemen stated.

Pupils of Somerville Northeastern Junior high school presented "Magic Garden," a musical revue, before a large audience, including Mayor John J. Murphy and other city officials.

In the revue were Louise Haskell, Mary Marchetti, Hilda Jeckett, Priscilla Hales, Marie Bosnitt, Amando Pieroni, Janet Cole, Jack Welch, Dorothy King, Mary Foran, Mildred Domenico, Norris McKenney, Thelma Tucker, Ruth Savage, Anna Carmosino, Margaret Bowls, Josephine Ghilore and Mary Puopolo.

The committee in charge included Helen L. Galvin, Florence Sullivan, Lucy Dorr, Anna Keating, Ruth Moore and Adela Balch.

Karl Ernst was guest leader of the school orchestra and Dorothy Silver and Mildred Baxter were accompanists.

The Saranac Ladies' Club of the Daily Industrial Home, Dorchester, are conducting a whist and bridge in aid of the home next Monday evening in the social hall of the school. The committee includes Mrs. George Gilmore, chairman; Mrs. Daniel Heffernan, Mrs. Michael J. Burke, Mrs. Mary Cronin, Mrs. Frederick J. Hickey, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, Mrs. John F. McCarthy, Mrs. Frank Pedonti, Mrs. Edward Corrigan, Mrs. Joseph Mulhall, Miss Alice Leonard, Mrs. John Dinati, Mrs. Joseph A. Rourke, Mrs. Alice Tracey and Mrs. Henry L. Daily.

On next Monday evening, the Roslindale Twi team will hold their third annual dance. A "Miss Boston" contest will be held. There will also be a collegiate contest and an exhibition dance.

The committee includes Steve Connolly, Jerry Calahan, Phil Puccio, Andy Spognardi, John Dixon, Bill Ross and the Misses Margaret Lalorella, Bernice Lusardi, Connie Dick, Helen Norton and Mary Ryder.

'FRAT BURGLAR' WANTED HERE

Brookline police today telegraphed police of Schenectady, N. Y., to hold Lawrence J. Kennedy, 20, former Amherst student, in connection with theft of a Brookline auto two weeks ago.

Kennedy was arrested in Schenectady charged with thefts from fraternity houses at Union College and Rensselaer Institute. He said his home was in Boston.

Police said he confessed and loot valued at several hundred dollars was found in his room in Troy. He also admitted stealing the car owned by Mellin C. Linscott of 133 Naples rd., Brookline, police said. Linscott's home was also entered and $150 taken.

100 LOCKED IN SUBWAY CARS

More than 100 passengers on two rear cars of an inbound Dorchester rapid transit train experienced a thrilling ride during the rush hour today when they were whirled past two tunnel stations in darkened and locked compartments for a distance of more than a mile.

The darkness and failure of the doors to open were caused by the absence of Guard Luke Donahue who was left behind on the Columbia station platform when the train set out for Andrew sq.

Passengers in the darkened cars treated their discomfort lightly until they discovered they were unable to leave the cars at Andrew sq. Their chagrin was accentuated when they were unsuccessful in attempts to land at Broadway station.

A male passenger with the aid of a match located the light switches before the train swept into the South Station and he was also able to operate the switches which opened the doors.

At the South Station acting starter, Peter L. Gaudet, boarded the train to replace Donahue and continued to the end of the trip at Harvard square.

Elevated officials declared Donahue left the train at Columbia station to adjust the "trips" which control the automatic brakes and was unable to get aboard when the train started on its way.

ARREST TWO IN BURGLAR CHASE

Two men arrested early today by Arlington police in a sporty roadster on a charge of transporting liquor were questioned by Brighton police in connection with an alleged attempted break in a drug store on Commonwealth ave. in that district.

The men in custody, who gave the names of Ralph Holmes, 23, married, of Woodbine ter., Auburndale, and Albert Jackson, 24, of Inman st., Cambridge, were captured in Arlington after a pursuit of two miles by the flying squad of that town, and put up a stiff battle before submitting to arrest.

Their capture followed an alarm sent out by Patrolman Daniel Sharkey of the Brighton police after two men whom he surprised at the front door of the Commonwealth ave. drug store escaped arrest under a fusillade of shots.

WARNER HOT ON STOCKS CASE

Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner plans to start vigorous prosecution of the alleged stock-selling swindle in connection with the Page & Shaw Candy Co., and the Holland Far East Tea and Coffee Corp., if was learned today.

Although the attorney-general is out of town for the weekend, Asst. Attys. Gens. Louis H. Sawyer and George R. Lourie are investigating the cases.

Irane Hart and Joseph Pollby are under arrest in Springfield in connection with the alleged stock swindles.

Students Present Japanese Play

The auditorium of the Michael Driscoll school in Brookline was transformed into a garden yesterday when children of the seventh grade presented a Japanese play with their parents as guests.

The play, "How the Mikado Chose the Chrysanthemum," was given under the direction of Miss Margaret Harris and Miss Bessie Arnington. Those who took part were Marie Clarke, Florence Flanders, Barbara Swift, Helen Robinson, Charlotte Sherrill, Barbara Harvey, Carol Clarke and Nola Bukes.

Fair Weather and Cool for Weekend

Fair and cool weather for the week-end was promised by the weather man today, with possible showers late tonight.

Letters From American Readers

Reader Agrees With Paper On Cadman

Editor Boston American:

I read with regret the stand that L. B. White has taken in regard to your editorial on Dr. Cadman. He doesn't seem to realize the editorial meant that religion and politics shouldn't be mixed, and not that any slur was intended against Protestantism.

I will admit that Dr. Cadman is a very brilliant speaker, but I don't see why L. B. White should stop reading the Boston American because he does not agree on this subject, any more than I would stop listening to Lt. Cadman's broadcasts, even if I do not agree with his political views.

Vet Scores Unfair Tactics of Higher-Up

Editor Boston American:

Her Boy in Prison sums up the situation prevailing in our land of democracy? My patriotism is on the decline because of the "Big Shot" methods of those higher up. I have had a taste of these things myself in jail, but I didn't dare to say anything against this practice. It appears to me that the Boston American is the spokesman for the ordinary class for underdog. That takes courage. The ordinary class has always been the "goat" for these Big Shots, then they wonder why there are Reds, etc.

[illegible]ds American for Patriotic Stand

Editor Boston American:

In today's issue of your great paper we read a letter from L. B. White (Mr. or Mrs. which?) in protest at your editorial of May 14 concerning one whom (he or she) in company with "millions of other good American citizens," admires. Well, Sir White (he or she) is talking quite loud when (he or she) is voicing the sentiment of millions." He or she says I have read your paper faithfully for 20 years. "If that's a fact (and I don't think it is) he or she should be ashamed to acknowledge that he or she is no better American than to defend a clergyman who steps out of his role as a spiritual advisor—yes, as an ambassador of Christ—to foe one minute try and influence or advise people to be tied to any country by treaty or World Court or League of Nations. His job is the saving of souls and he should stick to that, for that is what he was ordained for and that's what he took his oath and vows of a clergyman to do.

I have the utmost respect for all clergymen—no matter what denomination they are—so long as they stick to their job. I have always thought the Rev. S. Parks Cadman was a very good and holy clergyman, but when he urges or defends or advises an alliance with England, good Americans must lose confidence in him.

Now, Mr. Editor, tell when England ever won a war or a battle with any nation in history without the assistance of some power that she had tied up with some treaty.

The good old U. S. A. hasn't yet recognized the Soviet government or tied up with any kind of treaty or agreement with them, but England has, and was the first to do so after the World War.

We have been trying to put down Communism. Has England? No. Who is the Communist? He is the child of the Pacifists who claim to be good Americans. Shame! What I would like to know, sir, is who asked for this disarmament? Did the people of this country, good Americans, who gave the flower of their manhood and womanhood for democracy, did they ask for it? No. Do the people know how many billions of dollars of English capital are invested in our railroads and oils and other products of our greatland? It's no wonder England wants us to disarm. Sham! Sham!

Let's have some protest meetings on the Boston Common. Let us tell the people from the Parkman stand what we think—our statesmen who went over to England and tried to hog-tie us to any such naval treaty as they did. Invite some of our good old Americans to tell over the radio what they think of this whole business. Your great paper tells us many things that are good for us, but all our people don't read your paper. We have baseball players interviewed over the radio, and other people tell their stories. Ask the common people to tell what they think—the ones who read your paper but never write letters or ask favors, but who are all the time paying their share in the upkeep of our great country.

Hurrah for the American! Hurrah for the man who wrote that editorial that appeared May 14.

JOHN J. RATTIGAN.

Modern Authors Too Crude In Sex Views

Editor Boston American:

Can anything be done to stop the loose way in which sexology is being treated in books by a number of writers? Many of them are crude, abnormal, immature, half baked ideas on this subject.

Matters which were considered unnatural, debasing are now being handled in ways that would place them in the Hall of Fame.

I have just read one of these books on sexology by a woman. This has been rejected by a library after careful examination. But what about complaints of fiction which harbors a phrase, just a few lines, that is apparently off the well beaten path of normal pavements. Then there is a howl until the book is withdrawn from circulation here. Books on sexology with a few exceptions are more of a disgrace than the novels now under the ban. Let us only allow experts to handle this difficult subject, but how we can do that, is beyond us.

Wants Plymouth Rock Authenticity Proved

Editor Boston American:

Can any one prove that the stone exhibited at Plymouth is the identical stone that felt the touch of the feet of the Puritans in 1620?

It is now in an enclosed canopy. When I saw it, years ago, it was on the beach. A very old man standing by said to me:

"I don't believe that this is the real stone, but my father told me that one stone was just as good as another, and as they were all alike, one could be chosen to mark this event. So they picked this out."

What foundation is there for giving particular honor to this boulder, which will be seen this summer by thousands of tourists?

R. L. HORTON.

Sees Real Temperance In More Lax Law

Editor Boston American:

The rector-emeritus of St. John's Church, Northampton, is so "het up" over the Eighteenth Amendment, though somewhat of an invalid, he will cast his vote against it, even if he has to be carried to the polls in a litter.

He is following in the wake of Dr. Arlie V. Bock, assistant professor of medicine, Harvard Medical School, who claims an occasional drink of rum is a good thing.

It is real temperance. There is no temperate feature in the Eighteenth Amendment, which deprives one of a certain type of food value.

The law is not infallible. It would have been better to have put the Eighteenth Amendment on trial for 10 years, and then see how it works. It has not justified its existence. It has done some good in sobering up a few of these old toppers.

Let us have temperance, simon pure.

JOHN O. POPE.

Found Taxi Driver With Thought for Others

Editor Boston American:

A wonder happened to me the other day in attempting to cross Commonwealth ave. and Dartmouth st. Autos were running east and west like scared cats. I had to make an attempt to cross. A taxi came whizzing around the corner and then I thought my end had now arrived. But he stopped with a jerk, and, looking as impressive and inviting signal for me to advance, causing wonder on the part of those who were rushing back of me and fanning my locks. I went across, thanking him for the honor that he bestowed upon me.

As I have been knocked down twice by these cruisers of the street, I would like to record my firm belief that many taxi drivers have a heart. This is against that insinuation of one of the letters in the Column For Readers that these drivers do not care. They do.

M. J. JACKSON.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

As a daily reader of your paper, I wish to state that I think your editorials are very fair, and the sound, sensible way you bring things out is indeed worthy of praise.

You are with both classes, rich and poor, and as far as I can read you are giving us all an "even break."

What you said about the Columbus, O., outrage was indeed true, and hundreds of other stories that you brought before the eye of the public are the God's truth.

You are not mincing your words, and in brief you are giving the public a chance to get "wise" before it is too late.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 104

Here is a rocker which has got pretty far from the original Windsor design. The origin of the Windsor chair is a matter of dispute. Some authorities claim that the first models were found by George III in a peasant's cottage near Windsor in England. Others claim that they originated in Windsor, Ct. The latter theory seems to have the best foundation, in view of the peculiarities of construction employed in these pieces, and the fact that they were more common here than in England.

It is claimed that Windsor chairs were first made by wheelrights, a fact which may account for the almost wheel-like construction of the backs. The straight spindles shown in today's chair were not characteristic of the Windsor design.

The effect was more like spokes of a wheel running upward from the center of the back. The bamboo turning here shown was sometimes used, but the back was usually turned and bent to form the arms. This bending was a structural weakness and was responsible for breakage at those points. Later, arms were substituted.

The rocker shown is the property of Miss Miriam H. Kramer of 12 Trowbridge st., Cambridge.

In concetion with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Simmons' fairest seniors played hostess at the Hotel Somerset last night to more than 200 couples at the annual senior prom.

In charge was Miss Eleanor Bodwell, chairman of the prom committee, assisted by Misses Mary Falmer, Esther O'Brien, Catherine Sherman, Marion Kahnweiler, Eleanor Clark, Ellen Doubtfire, Barbara Ives, Alice Rathbone, Marjorie Frame, Virginia Royceroft, Winnibel Bronson and Doris Bartlett. Among distinguished faculty members in the receiving line were President and Mrs. Henry Lefavour and Dean Jean Louise Mesick.

MAYOR CURLEY PRAISED BY SENNOTT

Fire Chief Daniel F. Sennott, who will retire from the department on Monday, today bade Mayor Curley an official farewell in a communication eulogizing the achievements of the municipal head and citing them as an inspiration for the youth of today.

"For a number of years I have known you," the letter to Mayor Curley reads, "and during that time I have always admired the sterling qualities and outstanding qualifications which characterized your life.

"Success to you was not easily attained. There is no man in public life who has had so many obstacles to surmount. But if your life is an inspiration to the youth of today and to prosperity to record, that, indeed, has this country particular cause to rejoice.

"For your devoted wife, who has stood by you from the times of your early struggle until you reached the pinnacle of success, Mrs. Sennott and I constantly offer our prayers that God, in His goodness, might grant her the graces of a special blessing.

"In parting, I assure you that the memory of my association with you will be one of my most cherished treasures and when I shall no longer be officially connected with the Fire Department, will be a perpetual source of gratification."

ELKS ARE HOST TO CHILDREN

With happy shouts and laughter at the antics of the clowns, hundreds of crippled and orphaned youngsters trooped happily into the Tilks Hotel this afternoon for the big party and show the lodge puts on for them each year.

The children came from the Canton Hospital for Crippled Children, from the Institute for Deformed Children and from the many orphanages around Boston.

First on the program was a vaudeville show. Then came dances by the pupils of Miss Sara Horlick's school.

A movie was followed by refreshments and the presentation of gifts to each child.

Charles Van was in charge of the entertainment, assisted by Walter Stroni, George Curran and John Cussen.

On Trail of Boston Jewel Theft King

Belief that the operations of a jewelry "ring" were responsible for the alleged "fake" robbery of Mrs. Lester Jewelry Company, Hanover st., followed a conference of Asst. U. S. Atty. John J. Walsh and three inspectors of the Bureau of Internal Investigation in the Federal Building today.

The inspectors, William J. Bonner, finger print expert; Goldstein and Holmes left the building after a conference of over an hour. Philip Hollod, Grove st., Boston, assistant to Hyman Freedman, proprietor of the Lester store, was arrested late yesterday in connection with the investigation.

$750,000 Yacht Is Launched at Bath

Bath, Me., May 24 (INS)—The Sylvia, 191-foot $750,000 pleasure yacht, built for Logan G. Thompson, president of the Champion Coated Paper Company, Hamilton, O., was launched here today from Bath Iron Works. His sister, Mrs. Erie Meeks, Connersville, O., christened the craft with champagne.

THE DAILY HUBBUB

By ANTHONY SKELDING

T WHARF BOHEMIA

You walk down State st. past the big white lines of the U. S. Print Co. decked at Atlantic ave. A whiff of boiling lobsters and tang of the sea. A row of low, ancient buildings running out into the harbor. This is T Wharf. The row of old buildings was once a bustling bedlam of wholesale fish dealers. A few remain, but the majority of the dealers abandoned their T Wharf lofts to locate at the modern Fish Pier further down the harbor. At first a few stray artists set up studios in the abandoned lofts. Then followed the gift shop and tea room brigade. Many of the lofts have been converted into housekeeping apartments. The smell of fish has been scrubbed away and an air of tidy housekeeping prevails. The colony is unique. A motley of business temperamentals and artists. Some curious professions are represented. Bill Hauk, star salesman, wields the gavel as mayor . . . Bill's City Hall never heard of this branch assistant, but nevertheless he is there. Bill legs it the streets all day calling on his affluent customers . . . a playboy nights, he paints pictures of old ships on the studio walls. He can also do a bit of free verse on the side. Once he nearly sold an $8000 window display to a bank and it was the gossip of the wharf for a week.

SMELL REMOVER

Here also dwells (when in town) Dick Smith, atmospheric expert. Richard Smith goes about the country diagnosing objectional odors. Oil companies and big industrial plants are his best clients. Communities complain and Bill is dispatched to investigate. He then smoots around until he finds the trouble. What he prescribes, we do not know; but anyway the business of going about and smelling out trouble must be an interesting profession.

INDUSTRIAL HISTORIAN

One of the most colorful characters on the Wharf is Charlotte Heath, writer of business histories. It seems that each of many old established business enterprises about town which are just beginning to discover their ancestral record is quite an asset. A good genealogical chart may be used for all sorts of publicity purposes. Still Charlotte cannot get excited about anything less than a hundred years old—maybe 50, but such clients must pay proportionately. She really likes the old jobs. The smell of ancient ledgers fascinates her. Her studio overlooks the East Boston shore—now and then she flips a stale crust to the gulls. Romance is just like that on the Wharf.

TOWN MEETING

Once a year all the members of T Wharf colony (and we hope qualified voters) get together and hold town meeting. Bill Hauk is permanent moderator. Selectman are elected and warrants issued. The needs of the community are made, we understand that sometimes real money is involved. The "Wharf Rat," a hand printed leaflet, is the official organ of this municipal body. After the serious affairs of the evening are disposed of a little whoopee is in order. Once the clerk got pilfed and lost the annual report. It took a week to get out another. We like the town seal—"Speakeasy Harbor." Some arty job!

BOOK PRICES CUT AGAIN

New York, May 24 (U8)—Entering the "cut rate" war inaugurated by four other publishers, Albert Boni, president of Albert & Charles Boni, Inc., yesterday announced even sharper slashes.

Boni asserted he would bring out new books with paper covers at 50 cents each, half the lowest new prices announced by other publishers. Boni said:

"There is no point in half-way measures. If books can find a mass public, they must meet magazine prices. Our first books will be published June 10, and new ones issued regularly thereafter, as soon as we can conclude arrangements."

Among authors whose books the firm will publish, Boni said, are Thornton Wilder, Will Durant, D. H. Lawrence, Paul Morand, Jim Tully, Upton Sinclair, Benito Mussolini, Marcel Proust, Stuart Chase and James Truslow Adams.

Two other firms replied to the price cutting challenge with announcements that there would be no changes in their policies.

Jews Protest Ban at Mass Meeting

Formal protest against the recently announced British policy of prohibiting Jews into Palestine will be made at a large public meeting in Faneuil Hall next Thursday evening.

Plans for the mass meeting will be laid tomorrow afternoon at the Parker House, when representatives from more than 250 Jewish organizations of Greater Boston and New England will assemble.

FIRST CHURCH IN ROXBURY 300 YEARS

Interested historians and church members will gather in the First Parish church, Roxbury, tomorrow, as well as on Monday and Tuesday, to celebrate the founding of this old historic society. In 1630 some of the immigrants who moved over from Charlestown because of insufficient water, went out to the wilds of Roxbury and there began a settlement. As in other settlements the church was organized almost before any other activities began. The covenant which would, no doubtedly bear the date 1630 has been lost. The second preacher was the Rev. John Eliot, known later as the apostle to the Indians. He translated the Bible into the local Indian language, and went from place to place preaching Christianity to the aborigines.

The preacher for tomorrow morning's service is the regular pastor, the Rev. Miles Hanson. In the evening the Rev. W. W. Senn and Arthur Wildes will preach with Dr. Hanson. At 8:45 there will be a communion service conducted by the Rev. Louis C. Cornish, Harold A. Arnold, Abbott Peterson, Frank Holmes and W. Stafford Jones.

Church Notes

DR. ROBERT WATSON ON "SPECIAL EXPERTS"

Tomorrow evening, for those who are interested, Dr. Watson, secretary of the Lord's Day League, will deliver at the First Presbyterian Church on Columbus ave., an address in which he will discuss frankly the conditions and people responsible for "the terrible lawlessness now existing in Boston." Dr. Watson was made the head of a committee recently by a united ministers' meeting to look into conditions and report on the morals of the Hub. He will touch on such topics as "How Can a City Be Made Clean?" "Can the Present Police Commissioner Make It Clean?" "Can It Be Kept Clean?" "If Liquor is Being Sold in a Hotel Should Not the Whole Building Be Padlocked?" "What Is the Best Way for Boston to Truly Celebrate the Tercentenary?" This will be the Scotch Charitable Night at the First Church.

WHAT PRICE PEACE?

A memorial service will be held tomorrow evening at the First Methodist church, Temple st., Beacon Hill, when the Rev. Harry Belmont Hill will preache on "What Price Peace." Miss Margaret A. Nichols will conduct a service in memory of those of the congregation who have died during the year. In the morning Mr. Hill will have a Pentacostal sermon.

MT. VERNON CHURCH.

This Congregational church, at 6 Massachusetts ave., is preparing its yard for summer services in the open. The walls and fences are being redecorated and everything done in the way of landscape gardening possible to bring out the natural beauty of shrubs and flowers. Tomorrow will end the winter season. The choir will sing for the last time and tomorrow evening will come the closing student gathering. There will be no outside speaker. The garden services will not begin until July 1.

SCHOOL OF WISDOM

Mr. Paul Case, established head and regular lecturer of the School of Ageless Wisdom announces that the society is to have a permanent abode at 279 Newbury st. Here activities of all kinds directly and indirectly connected with his school will find a center. The building is now being remodelled so as to give an auditorium large enough to seat 150 people. Mr. Case and his wife are building up a following which is enthusiastic and loyal. His philosophy, he says, is based on all the great truths gathered through the ages.

FRIEND OF CHILDREN

The Rev. A. Z. Reimer, city missionary for the Methodist Church makes a plan for the children of Greater Boston who would have the advantage of an out door vacation this summer. He says $5000 must be raised. Twenty-five dollars keeps a child for an entire month in camp. Dr. Reimer may be reached at 581 Boylston.

"LITTLE FLOWER" NOVENA

The novena of Thursdays in honor of St. Theresa at St. Stephen's Church—the shrine of the "Little Flower" in Boston—continues at the shrine. The preacher on Thursday, May 29, will be the Rev. John J. Scollan of St. Clement's Church, Somerville.

The hours of the services on Thursday, May 29, the feast of the Ascension, will be noonday mass at 12:15 and the devotions at 3:30, 5:30 and 7:45 p. m.

UNITED BAPTIST

The Rev. David S. Klugh, pastor of the People's Baptist church, Boston, has been unanimously elected president of the United Baptist Convention of Massachusetts, composed of all colored Baptist churches. The session met in the Ebenezer Baptist church.

TEMPLE ISRAEL

"Just Average Boys and Girls" is the subject for Rabbi Levi this morning at Temple Israel when he conducts a children's service. Tomorrow he preaches on the subject, "Before We Separate."

Dr. Grenfell

For 15 minutes the Rev. Wilfred Grenfell, missionary and lecturer from the Labrador coast, will explain to a large audience at the Boston Garden Sunday afternoon why he believes prohibition in the United States is a blessing. For many years the doctor has been as a messenger from God to the fishermen and their families along a bleak and ice-bound coast. He is one out of four or five other prominent speakers.

GREAT DEMAND FOR SEATS IN GARDEN

The Loyalty League prohibition meeting to be held in the Boston Garden tomorrow afternoon is, according to latest reports guaranteed capacity audience. Many delegations of from three to five hundred are booked from suburban cities. A special train will bring 500 people from Salem. Another train specially chartered will haul 500 from Melrose, and another 500 will arrive from Somerville, 500 from Quincy and 1000 or more from Dorchester. Weymouth asks for 300 seats, and the Rev. I. W. Williamson who is handling the reservations says he is literally inundated. He is at the present time holding 4000 seats not already spoken for and reserved for various delegations. The capacity of the house is over 21,000, Dr. Williamson has been conducting choir rehearsals with 2000 voices. The Cambridge Salvation band will furnish music. Doors will be open at one o'clock, and speaking begins at three. Time will also will be given over to the concert. A loud speaker system already tested will make plain every word from the platform. Raymond Robins, Dr. Grenfell, Clarence DeMar, Mrs. M. W. Peabody, Professor J. R. Egan, Bishop Anderson and Mrs. Jessie Nicholson will be among the speakers.

COPLEY METHODIST

The Curry School of Expression will attend in a body the Copley church tomorrow morning where the Rev. Willard Reed Cooper will preach on "Lincoln at Gettysburg." In the evening two veterans will preach, the Rev. Guy Wayne, and the Rev. Albert Knapp. The pulpit will be draped with a Civil War flag which belonged to Dr. Snider's grandfather.

CATHOLIC TRUTH HOUR

Catholic charities will be the subject for the radio one to two tomorrow afternoon when Father Robert P. Barry of the Catholic Charitable Bureau will be the speaker over WNAC.

Sharkey Gets Ovation in New York Garden

NEW YORK, MAY 24—Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion who battles Max Schmeling in a 15-round bout for the world championship at the Yankee Stadium on June 12, was sitting with Johnny Buckley, Al Lacy and Mr. Boston in a front-row seat at the New York Hippodrome on the crowd poured down the aisles and to...nacio Fernandez to enter the ring.

As Sharkey had walked to his seat, David B. [illegible] stopped him to shake his hand. Walter Camp and his wife, formerly Ruth Eddy, stepped forward as well, but Sharkey, busy assuring his coming battle with the German Demp...sey, [illegible]

Jack Conway

Damon Runyon conveyed to him the greetings of Mrs William Randolph Hearst and the members of her Milk Fund committee.

"Mrs. Hearst has purchased 200 tickets for her personal party," Runyon told Sharkey. "The Hearst boys are redhot boxing fans and they want to see you punch it out with Schmeling."

William F. Carey, the master of twenty millions, introduced his Wall Street friends to the American champion.

Jim Farley, boxing commissioner, came over to ask Sharkey how he felt in regard to his title engagement.

Meanwhile the 18,000 persons jammed into the Garden to see the Singer and Fernandez quarrel stretched their necks to get a peek at Sharkey. But a peek didn't satisfy them. They wanted to get a good look at the American standard bearer in the great international ring battle, and they also wanted to let him know they were behind him.

"We Want Sharkey," Is Cry of Crowd

"WE WANT SHARKEY," was roar from crowd.

As Singer and Fernandez appeared, the crowd could not hold its impatience any longer.

"We want Sharkey," yelled one gallery god.

And the cry was taken up throughout the Garden.

"We want Sharkey," soon became a mighty roar.

Sharkey turned his face towards Mr. Boston. His eyes lit up, there was a slight flush on his face.

Perhaps he wondered if his ears were deceiving him. He may have been thinking of the night in the same Garden when Paulino, the Basque, Heeney, the New Zealander and Jack Delaney, the French Canadian, were introduced and Jack Sharkey, the American, was booed.

Sharkey pretended those boos didn't hurt him, but he would not have been human if he hadn't resented them as they were undeserved. He had fought every man he had been called upon to meet, he had spent his money freely in his own country, he was a good husband and devoted father. And yet they booed him.

Maybe Sharkey thought that if he played the game like Tex Rickard broke his promises and told us truths because some people like to be told untruths especially about themselves, it might have been different.

As Sharkey sat there last night, the cries of "we want Sharkey" increased.

Crowd Cheers Sharkey for Five Minutes

Joe Humphreys motioned for Sharkey to enter the ring. Jack was through the ropes in a few seconds.

No need for Joe to introduce the American champion, and if he had attempted to do so his voice could not have been heard above the mighty roar of the 18,000 fans who wanted to pay tribute to their fellow American, Jack Sharkey.

For five minutes the crowd cheered Sharkey. Jack bowed and smiled and looked as happy as a boy about to start on a holiday. Those cheers melted his heart and I made him forget all about the boos of other days.

"I was in the Garden the night Jack Dempsey stopped Tunney during the battle of the long count in Chicago," said Mr. Boston. "He was given a tremendous ovation, but the Sharkey ovation was greater.

"The public has been a little shy about giving credit, but it has apparently decided to pay up with interest. When Jack came back to his seat in the Garden he was jammed with enthusiasm, tickled by the ovation he had received and very confident he will knock out Schmeling."

Women's Title Court Finals on Today

Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, of Southboro, meets Mis. Marjorie Morrell, of Dedham, today in the finals of the Women's Massachusetts Singles Tennis championship.

W.G.A. TITLE WON BY MISS RICHARDS

By BILL GRIMES

A former California and Ohio State title holder is now the Massachusetts champion, for Miss Dorothy Richards of Weston today defeated Mrs. Dwight M. Baker, jr., of Cleveland, 3 and 1, in the finals of the Women's Golf Association of Boston Championship at the Salem Country Club.

The new champion, playing for the Cleveland Country Club course in 1928, won the Ohio State Women's championship and previously had captured the California Women's title.

On her way to the championship, Miss Richards eliminated Miss Ruth Batchelder, Miss Beatrix Vahey, Mrs. Henry F. Prunier, jr., and Miss Dorothy Hunter, the 16-year-old Newton High school girl.

Miss Richards Was Steady Throughout the Match

Miss Richards was steady throughout the match today. She hit some beautiful tee shots, and was very tight up around the greens, with the exception of the fourth hole where she took three putts.

Mrs. Belcher evidently was unable to recover from the strain brought on by her match with Mrs. D. M. Baker, jr., in the semi-finals. She was very much off form and was struggling from start to finish. Mrs. Belcher has had four hard matches this week, two of which went to the home green and the others did not end until she had played the 17th hole.

Water in Trap Near 14th Hole Hurts Game

Although Mrs. Belcher's game was below standard the break in today's match occurred at the 13th and 14th hole. Mrs. Belcher was one down going to the 13th, but she passed up a beautiful opportunity to square the match when she missed a four-foot putt for a win.

Going to the 14th Mrs. Belcher's tee shot lodged in a new trap into which the water from the green had drained. Mrs. Belcher, due to the wet condition of the sand, failed to get out, losing a par 3 hole to a 4.

Mrs. Belcher and Miss Richards were unable to get better than 5s on the first hole, due to a pulled tee shot by the former and a skied one by the latter. A skied second shot by Mrs. Belcher started her on her way to loose the second hole to a 6, but she squared the match with a 3 at the short 3rd where Miss Richards was trapped from the tee.

Mrs. Belcher's Tee Shot in Trap at 4th Hole

Mrs. Belcher caught the trap at the fourth hole with her tee shot, but got a half when Miss Richards pulled her second. Going up the 5th hole, Mrs. Belcher encountered her first tough break when her second shot, after hitting the mound, kicked back into the rough and she lost the hole to a regulation 5. With Miss Richards on the sixth green from the tee, a slightly pulled tee shot by Mrs. Belcher hit another mound and kicked into the trap. She missed her second shot and after putting her third over the green, conceded the hole to her opponent.

In all probability Mrs. Belcher was upset by the bad breaks at the 5th and 6th holes, for she 3 putted the 7th green losing the hole to a 5, which made her 3 down.

Miss Richards Trapped, but She Gets a Half

Although Miss Richards was trapped with her second shot going to the ninth and half topped her third coming out, but won the half in be 3 up at the turn.

Home with her 3d and down with 3 putts won the 10th for Mrs. Belcher and she struggled into a half at the 11th after being trapped on her drive, by virtue of a stymie.

Mrs. Belcher played a beautiful iron to the short 12th green, while Miss Richards had an easy one, and she lost the hole to a 3 after Mrs. Belcher had missed a 4-foot putt for a win at the 12th. She dropped to 2 down again when he tee shot off the 14th landed in the new trap and she took a 5 to Miss Richards 4.

Mrs. Belcher Wins 15th Hole With a 6

Mrs Belcher took the 15th hole with a 6 for Miss Richards after being trapped with her 4, needed 7 to get down. Off the 15th tee Mrs. Belcher started to press, which resulted in a hook tee shot into the rough, another hook with her third shot from which she was obliged to play out safe and at last the hole to a 6

Dormie by Mrs Belcher came off the 17th tee and used up four shots to get home, to loose the hole to a regulation 5 and the championship 3 and 1.

MISS RICHARDS AND MRS. BELCHER PLAY FOR W. G. A. TITLE

Miss Dorothy Richards — Mrs. D. M. Belcher

MALDEN PLAYS MEDFORD TODAY

Medford High School invades the Pearl st. field of Malden High this afternoon for the second game of the season between the old rivals.

Medford took the first game this year, 3 to 2, but Malden has shown remarkable power since that time and is out to even the count.

Johny McCarthy, big catcher of Malden, is back in the lineup and his presence improves the Blue and Gold outfit.

George Beaman will fling for Malden. The husky right hander has a lot of stuff and confidence, and with the team backing him up is hard to beat. He has not lost a game this year. Romy probably will start on the h. f. for Medford.

Outboards Will Race at Worcester Next Week

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Now that Yankee has had her first, and incidentally a successful trial run off Marblehead, things are beginning to become more compact in the matter of the four potential America Cup defenders.

Whirlwind, the other of the two defense boats built at Lawley's, in Neponset, will soon be out in deep water scuttling before the, wind also and the stage then will be almost set for a bit of real action.

Meanwhile, outboard enthusiasts will turn their attention next week, on Thursday and Friday, to the huge outboard motorboat regatta on Lake Quinsigamond at Worcester.

Here the biggest and best regatta ever held in Worcester will be held under sanction of the New England Outboard Motorboat Association.

Entries are still coming in for the [illegible] the run with [illegible] for

Crusaders Qualify 13 in N. E. Intercollegiate Meet

MAINE U. IS IN SECOND PLACE

Holy Cross qualified 13 men in the trials of the New England intercollegiate athletic championships at Tech Field yesterday afternoon, the finals of which will be staged on the same track starting at 2 o'clock today.

Scoring men in practically every track event and in numerous field events, the Purple succeeded in qualifying 13 athletes who outnumbered any that the other New England colleges could talk.

Finishing next to the wearers of the Purple were the Universities of Maine, with 11 athletes; New Hampshire and Worcester were next, with 10. Bates, Tech and Northeastern had nine; Brown eight; Boston College seven; Rhode Island State, Colby three; Worcester Tech two; while Boston University and Tufts brought up the rear. In the process on with one lone qualifier apiece.

Holy Cross started scoring men right from the opening burst in event until almost the final event on the day's happenings. Although the Worcesterites were without the services of their crack sprinter, Jimmy Lyons, owing to the death of his father young Morin, captain-elect of Holy Cross, capably filled his place in the dashes and partly made up for the absence of the American in the relay events.

Maine Will Give H. C. Hard Battle

Although Holy Cross scored the greatest number of qualifiers, there seems to be some doubt about the Worcester team being able to land the big win in the finals this afternoon. The University of Maine, which scored only two less than Holy Cross, still looms up as the possible winner.

It would not be surprising if Coach Jenkins' men repeated their triumphs in the past few years and thus run away with perpetual ownership of the beautiful cup emblematic of the New England Intercollegiate athletic championships.

One record was established in the trials when Geoffrion of the University of New Hampshire succeeded in throwing the spear a distance of 185 feet ¾ inches which smashed the former record of 181 feet 11 inches, held by A. W. Sager of Bates.

At the time of Geoffrion's throw it was thought that perhaps the mark would stand, but that proved to a wind that was blowing. But when the question was put up to Referee Albert Geiger, he decided that there was no wind blowing at the time to help the New Hampshire athlete and that the mark would stand as a record performance.

Holy Cross seems to be well fortified for a possible victory and started out by scoring in the hundred sprint, quarter-mile, where the Purple is sure of garnering points in the hammer and possibly in the shot and javelin.

Little George Morin was one of the principal performers for the Purple, he scoring in three events. Flanagan also looks good for a win in the hammer, while in the middle distances and especially in the quarter-mile Bernie McCafferty and Klubnach should win points.

Maine on the other hand looks just as strong. The Pine Tree State champions have three men in the sprint while they are particularly strong in the field, which bodes trouble for the Worcester team.

Olympia Village O. K.; Food Is Big Problem

Berlin, May 24.—The construction of an Olympia village to house athletes in Los Angeles has been approved by the international Olympic committee, but there was, today, some hesitance about the proposition of food service.

This was not an unimportant feature because there is important item of furnishing the German athlete with the diet to which he is accustomed.

The German association voiced a fear that their men might meet a cafeteria style and fare themselves standing in line.

Voigt Betters Jones at St. Andrews

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 24 (AP)—Bobby Jones scored a 71 in practice over the old course at St. Andrews today and forthwith laid his clubs aside until Monday, the opening of the British amateur golf championship. It was the lowest score of the day and matched George Voigt came in late in the day with a sparkling 70.

TRACK AND FIELD STARS WHO ARE EXPECTED TO SHINE TODAY

Engle, star performer in the quarter, is a favorite to win for Yale today in the dual meet with Harvard at the Stadium.

Bernie McCafferty, Holy Cross, winner in the 440 qualifying heat in the N. E. Intercollegiates, is a favorite to win in the finals today at Tech Field.

HARVARD TAKES LEAD IN MEET

Stadium, Cambridge, Mass., May 24—Harvard made a clean sweep in the varsity mile, when Pen Hallowell, Dave Cobb and Joe Fobes of the Crimson finished abreast, with the nearest Yale man some 25 yards in the rear.

The first placewas given to Hallowell, who had a few inches at the tape, with Cobb and Fobes placing in that order.

The milers started off fast. A. W. Vinton of Harvard taking the lead, with the pack bunched at his heels. F. A. McKechnie of Yale went up front at the start of the second lap and held the lead until the back stretch of the third lap around, when Hallowell and Cobb went past the Yale man, followed by the rest of the field

Joe Fobes came up on the final lap and the Harvard Crimson trio tied around the track together. Coming down the home stretch to the tape the men stayed in line and broke the worsted together. The time, 4 minutes 24-25 second, was fast considering the wind that blew in the faces of the runners all the way up the back stretch

Lady Astor Wins Using Steel Clubs

Deal, England, May 24 (AP)—Using a steel-shafted driver, a brassie and a flat wooden putter, Lady Astor won her match today in the Parliamentary golf handicap in which nearly 80 Parliamentarians engaged.

Lady Astor, the only woman competitor, had an exciting battle with Lord Wharncliffe from whom she received 11 strokes handicap, finally winning at the last hole where she sank a three-yard putt with the skill and accuracy of a Bobby Jones to enter the second round.

Penn Track Team Beats Dartmouth

Philadelphia, May 24 (AP). The University of Pennsylvania track team today defeated Dartmouth college, 83 to 52.

Pennsylvania captured nine of the 15 events Barnes Berlinger, decathlo champion and Penn's "iron man," contributed 21 points to the winners score.

He won the shot put high jump and pole vault events and finished second in the javelin and discus events.

Max Schmeling Convinces Critics He's in Shape

By ED FRAYNE

Endicott, N. Y., May 23—Whispers that things are not what they might be in the weight, condition and training of Max Schmeling were discussed at a knock-down-and-drag-out conference between newspapermen and the German warrior here this afternoon.

The situation is much better understood tonight and even the most skeptical of Schmeling critics went away convinced that Schmeling has a very good understanding of what is best for Schmeling

"I am hearing all sorts of complaints about my methods of training," he said. "I do not do enough road work. I do too much golf. I box without warming up. I do not skip the rope. I do not punch the bag. I am too light. Not so long ago, in Germany they said I was too heavy.

"I know myself. I cannot listen to everyone. My fight with Jack Sharkey on June 12 will be my 50th fight and in 50 fights one must learn something.

"There will be no punching bag in the Yankee Stadium ring on the night I fight Jack Sharkey. There will be no rope skipping. I will not be asked to run around the park before the match. This is a fight, and I will be ready to fight.

Do not forget that I am merely putting the finishing touches to my training here. I have been getting ready for this match since last October."

"I did my road work in Germany," he added. "To continue it now would do more harm that good.

MRS. MOODY AND MISS RYAN WIN

Auteuil, France, May 24 (AP)—The powerful American combination of Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan captured the French women's doubles tennis championship today, defeating Mme. Simone Mathieu and Mlle. Yvette Bathier of France in the final at 6—3, 6—3.

The Californians won the title without loss of a single set through a bye and default they had to play only three matches and won them all in short order.

Queen Helen, paired with one of the finest doubles players in the world, thus added a second French title to the singles crown which she is now defending.

Mrs Moody and Miss Ryan played invincible tennis, especially in the second set where Helen, for the first time in her present appearance in France, reached top form.

The Americans won through their own superior playing, not the faults or errors of their adversaries

Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., had an easy time in her opening singles match, winning from Mme Vauvenet, French veteran at 6—2, 6—0. The plucky Miss Jacobs in the third round as she had drawn a bye.

In the last match of the day, Bill Tilden and his German partner, Cenous Aussem, reached the quarter finals in mixed doubles through a 7—5, 6—3 victory over Mlle Yvette Bather and Pierre Gorodissi of France

The French Davis cup combination of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon went into the semi-final round of the doubles championship, defeating Tacchini Haiana and Tanno Aoe of Japan.

Bill Tilden and Wilbur Coen, America's representatives in the men's doubles champion chase, were eliminated in the quarter-finals by the French team of Jean Borotra and Rene Debuyer. The scores were 6—2, 8—10, 5—7, 6—3, 7—5.

Conference Refuses Request of Iowa Stars

Chicago, May 24 (AP)—The faculty committee of the western conference today refused to reinstate eight Iowa athletes to good standing and ordered complete severance of athletic relations after 1930 with all colleges and universities which do not have a three-year eligibility rule

The committee's action means that neither the Army nor the Navy athletic teams will be permitted to play Big Ten teams after completion of the 1930 schedule at least until such time as they adopt and enforce a rule allowing athletes only three years of collegiate competition.

The Big Ten three-year rule has been in effect for several years, with exemptions granted in favor of the service eleven.

Among the Iowa athletes denied reinstatement was Mike Farrell, co-captain-elect of the 1930 Hawkeye football team.

Dodgers Defeat Braves in Third Game

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BERGER HITS 10TH HOMER OF SEASON

By JOE CASHMAN

The Brooklyn Dodgers, supposedly weak against southpaw pitching, had little difficulty making hits and runs against Ed Brandt, star Tribal portsider, and walked off with the third game of the series at the Wigwam, 6 to 3.

Except for Walter Berger's 10th home run of the season with a runner on in the sixth inning, it was a featureless contest.

Joe Cashman

Berger's mighty drive his first four-bagger of the year at the expense of Watson Clark, lefty Brooklyn southpaw, and it looked for a while as though the Tribe might win. But Senor Adolpho Luque was rushed into the fray and saved the day for the enemy.

Brandt allowed 11 hits and five runs before he was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, and Bruce Cunningham, who finished up, gave two hits and a run.

The Dodgers' victory sent them into a tie for first place with the St. Louis Cardinals, who were rained out.

Babe Herman, with three singles and two walks in five trips to the platter, was the outstanding Brooklyn slugger, while Berger, with a single, in addition to his home run, was the big noise in the Navitives' attack.

Robins Start Scoring in Fourth Frame

After each team had been held to two hits in the first three frames, the hostiles broke loose in the fourth.

Gilbert started the frame by drawing a pass and singles by Herman and Wright sent him home. Frederick scored Herman with a single after Bissonette had fanned, and Wright counted when Flowers came through with another one-baser.

With two down in the sixth, the visitors added another run to their total when Flowers doubled and Clark singled.

After Maranville had flied out in the Braves' half of the stanza, Selee made the fourth hit off Clark, a single, and Berger followed with his circuit drive. Clark kept the rally alive by getting a triple and scored when Gowdy bit to Bissonette.

Singles by Herman, Wright and Bissonette gave the Brooklynites another run in the seventh.

SHARKEY TELLS HOW HE DEFEATED PHIL SCOTT

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Following my knockout victory over Tommy Loughran, the New York Athletic Commission ruled that it would recognize the survivor of a series of bouts between Max Schmeling, Phil Scott and myself as heavyweight champion of the world.

Schmeling was under contract to a box Scott, but would not go through with the match.

I was anxious to battle Schmeling and clear up any doubt about my being the best heavyweight in the world. And when Max persisted in his refusal to meet Scott I told Bill Carey of the Garden I would accept the British champion as my opponent for the Miami contest.

At one time Tuffy Griffith was suggested as my opponent, but Johnny Buckley turned him down. A win over Griffith would not have helped me to get the Schmeling match.

Scott would still be in the way. And I decided to remove the British champion from his choice position.

There had been a great deal of criticism of Scott as a boxer. He was made the victim of some severe attacks.

SCOTT SKILLFUL

In justice to the British champion, I wish to state I have always considered him a skilled boxer, a capable ring general and a determined type of warrior.

Scott has a fine left hand which is probably one of the reasons Schmeling did not care to meet him.

My bout with Scott was staged at Miami, Fla., on February 26, 1930. It came a few months after the stock market crash. This added to the fact I was made a heavy favorite at odds ranging from 10 to 1 to 6 to 1, did not help the show.

No heavyweight bout is more than a 2 to 1 affair. When big fellows clash, there is always a chance that either man will score a knockout.

At the gong in the first round I went after Scott much like I had floored Dempsey.

I drove a right hand sock for the chin after rushing across the ring to meet the British champion. Scott lifted his left hand and knocked the punch off.

In the second round, I forced Scott back into my own corner and dropped him to the canvas with a straight left to the face. He took a count of five.

The third round was very sensational. I had shifted my attack to the body. A left hook to the body sent Phil down for a count of five.

When Scott got up, I knew I had him beaten. I didn't give him any rest and was all over him. Another left hook to the body dropped him to the canvas.

Referee Lou Magnolia sent Scott to his corner. The blow was perfectly fair and Scott later resumed boxing.

SCOTT CLAIMS FOUL

I forced my way in close and threw a terrific left hook to the solar plexus. The punch hung Scott on the ropes. He claimed a foul but his claim was not allowed. Referee Lou Magnolia declared me a winner when Scott refused to continue.

The New York Athletic Commission then announced it would recognize Schmeling and negotiate a bout between Herr Max and myself as for the heavyweight championship of the world.

I had reached my objective after six rounds of ups and downs. Persistency had finally gained the victory.

Jack Sharkey, who was happy retired 1930 a month in the navy six years previous was signed to battle Schmeling in New York for the heavyweight championship of the world.

I was under contract with Madison Square Garden Corp. for this bout.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst wished the match for the Milk Fund. The Garden, Schmeling and myself readily agreed to the new arrangement.

It was a great honor to act as the representative of America in a bout with the [illegible] contender.

Singer Conquers Fernandez in N. Y.

New York, May 24 (AP)—That one knockout defeat Al Singer suffered in his spectacular ring career has been avenged to the full satisfaction of Singer.

Singer, knocked out by Ignacio Fernandez a year ago, gave the Filipino a sound trouncing in a 10-round return battle at Madison Square Garden last night.

Arnold Wins Easily Over Worcester Tech

Worcester, May 24. In one of the poorest games witnessed here for some time, Arnold College emerged with a 16-10 win over the Worcester Tech nine here today.

Arnold's players connected for 15 hits and took full advantage of Tech's errors as well as their many slip-ups to win.

B. C. Cubs Down Green Yearlings

Boston College's freshman baseball team came from behind in the eighth inning and won out in the tenth against the Dartmouth yearlings at University Heights yesterday by a score of 5-4.

B. C. High Defeats Jamaica Plain, 11-6

Boston College high marked up its third victory of the season by downing Jamaica Plain high, 11 to 6, in a hard-fought game played at Jamaica Plain yesterday.

Fights Last Night

New York—Ty Singer, New York, outpointed Ignatio Fernandez, Philippines (10); Joe Scalfaro, New York, outpointed Ted Tapleton, Great Britain (10); Leo Massey, Philadelphia, outpointed Johnny McMillan, Scotland (10).

Detroit—Mickey Walker, world middleweight champion, outpointed Charley Belanger, Canada (10); non-title.

Duluth, Minn.—Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth, knocked out Andre Castens, Mexico City (10).

Fort Dodge, Ia.—Joe Phalen, Omaha, Neb., and Billy Light, St. Paul, drew (10).

San Francisco—Herman Bartlett, Minneapolis, stopped Chuck Rollin, Denver (10); Steve Brodie, Brooklyn, outpointed Ralph Abbs, Oklahoma City (10).

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Ky Sullivan, St. Paul, outpointed Johnny Fulton, Cedar Rapids (10); Sonny Myers, Chicago, defeated Joe Bivins, Cedar Rapids (10).

OSTER-SHUCCO WIN AT ARENA

Willie Oster of Charlestown and Tony Shucco of the North End were the winners in the two 10-round bouts which featured the Arena A. C. show at the Arena before a gathering of 3000 fans last night.

Oster by virtue of his victory over Pat Perry, lad of Brockton won the New England light heavyweight title which Allen recently won from Arthur Flynn of Lawrence.

Shucco won over Bob Jasse of Revere in the semifinal bout.

Pat Perking of South Boston won the decision over Jerry Brendi of Medford in the opening four-rounder. Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury scored a knockout over Freddy Rich of Wakefield in two rounds while Eddie Sullivan of Walpole got the verdict in his bout with Bobby Walker of Somerville. The referee stepped in and stopped the bout in the first round.

Leslie Baker of Watertown had the toughest battle of his career when he clashed with Frankie Baldi of Lynn. Baker won the contest after six stormy rounds, but he did not register as well with Baldi as he has with most of his opponents.

The final bout of the evening was that between Jack Moulton of Roxbury and Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston. O'Flaherty was awarded the verdict after four rounds.

Brockton Defeats Medford on Track

Brockton, May 24—Brockton high track team defeated Medford high 61½ to 25½, at Eldon B. Keith Field in a dual track meet. Capt Richard Sproul of Brockton won the 100 and 220-yard dashes, running broad jump and ran anchor on the winning relay team.

James Rowdren showed class when he defeated Riordon's best in the 440 and 880 dash.

Simpson in Clash With Tolan Today

Evanston, Ill., May 24 (INS)—These two flashes of the collegiate track world—George Simpson of Ohio State and Eddie Tolan of Michigan—took the spotlight here at Northwestern's Dyche stadium today as ten Western Conference universities fought it out for the 1930 track championships.

Simpson in the preliminaries yesterday served notice that he is out to shatter records. Splashing through the rain, each won his heat in both dashes. Their respective times were: 100-yard dash: Simpson, 9.7; Tolan, 9.8; 220-yard dash: Simpson, 21.0; Tolan, 21.8.

ZONE DAVIS CUP FINALS TODAY

Washington, May 24 (INS)—With the issue already decided, Davis Cup teams representing the United States and Mexico make their final appearances in competition here this afternoon at the Chevy Chase Club.

Two singles matches are scheduled, with George M. Lott and Wilmer Allison as the probable American players meeting Ricardo Tapia, Mexican ace, and Ignacio de la Borbolla.

The American team, however, by virtue of yesterday's win in the doubles match, has clinched the championship of the American zone and won the right to meet the winner of the European zone in the semi-finals. Only that match now stands between their entry into the finals against the champion French, defenders of the coveted Davis Cup.

John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison overwhelmed Manuel Llano and Federico Unda in the doubles in three straight sets, 6—0, 6—3 and 6—3, for the deciding point in the American-Mexican meeting yesterday. Lott previously had disposed of Borbolla, and Allison of Tapia in the singles.

Front Row Problem Grandstand Seats Just Good How Specs Get Tickets

By Damon Runyon

If some kind legislator would introduce a bill for the abolishment of the Front Row, it would greatly ease the problem of Mr. Frank G. Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden.

The Front Row is the bane of Mr. Bruen's existence. It is the bugaboo of every man who is confronted by the task of allotting rooms for the clients of any popular event. The Front Row is where every client desires to perch, not necessarily to see, but to be seen. The Front Row in New York, at least, is regarded not so much as a point of vantage as a badge of consequence.

It is where the big wigs sit. I guarantee that if these big wigs would suddenly decide that nobody who is anybody should sit any closer up than the 20th row, the fore part of the house would be sparsely occupied thereafter. For everybody would want to be back where it was fashionable. The Front Row is mainly an illusion. At the Yankee Stadium, for example, where the big Milk Fund boxing show takes place the night of June 12, and which Mr. Frank G. Bruen's immediate woe, the very best seats are in the upper tier overhanging the ring, but I well recall when they could scarcely give them away.

The different now, to be sure, because the expert ringworms have learned by experience. The seats in the grandstand are not only just as advantageous, but more comfortable than the ringside perches, and moreover are sheltered from any possible inclemencies of the weather, which is why the $13.75 and the $5.25 seats for the Sharkey-Schmeling fight are selling like the famous hot cakes.

Worry to Bruen

But The Front Row remains to gradually undermine the perfectly normal nerves of Mr. Frank G. Bruen. It has him pacing at the counterpane when he goes to bed o' mornings, for Mr. Bruen abandoned his life-long custom of going to bed at night when the ticket sale for the Milk Fund show opened in earnest.

Now the actual difference in feet and inches between The Front Row and the last row at a big fight in a ballyard isn't as considerable as some folks seem to think. But in importance to some it is very considerable, indeed. I do not exaggerate when I say to you that many otherwise rather sensible persons of prominence have waxed highly indignant on arriving at a ballyard battle to find their choice behind citizens they deem of lesser magnitude.

Childish as it may seem, I have known the disgruntled ones to openly voice their indignation. They consider themselves entitled by right of prominence to The Front Row. It has been estimated that out of a population of over 7,000,000 in the Greater City, more than 8,000,000 persons consider themselves entitled to The Front Row. I only wish that Mayor Walker, Tony Ridolfe, Ed Hutton, and some of the other eminent ringworms would publicly announce that they intended occupying seats in the last row hereafter to prove my point. But I doubt that these gents are sufficiently interested in my arguments to help me out.

In vaccinating infants the leg is preferable, but in older children the arm is better unless they can be restrained from walking about. The site of the eventual scar should, of course, be taken into consideration. Women prefer to be vaccinated where scar will not show.

NEW-FASHIONED GIRL EXERTS HER CHARM

Bewildering Effect of This Lovely Creature

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Girls are girls again.

One year, two years ago, with their boyish haircuts, boyish figures and flat, plain boyish clothes, the disguise that girls wore was still pretty complete.

They were so comfortable, they said, with short, narrow skirts and sleek, shorn heads, that they thought it would be nice to feel like that always.

Beatrice Fairfax

But this year they've forgotten all about that desire for comfort.

Their lengthened skirts end in thin, sweetly impractical frills, and there's a line to show just where their slim little waists are, and their coiffures demand a great many hairpins and their hats are floppy. And they tell you that they think it's cute to look feminine for a change. As, of course, it is.

But the interesting part of all this, it seems to me, is not merely that there's been a change of fashion, for fashions perpetually change, but that this change has been of so radical a sort that it's had an effect on boys and young men that is actually bewildering.

Boys who are now 20 had until recently never seen a really girly girl who was at the same time up-to-date.

These boys had become pretty much used to beings who dressed and acted a good deal like themselves. They liked them; beings very much and very frequently fell in love with them. Indeed, such girls were no less adorable than girls have always seemed to boys. They looked independent, and they said they wanted to be independent. That seemed to settle it.

Not only the enamored boys but we, the middle-aged onlookers, rather thought it would always be like that.

But what a vast change has been brought about by the wearing of a few ruffled frocks.

The girl of 1930 may say, and feel, that she needs no masculine protection. But what youth will believe her?

The charm that she is exerting on her male acquaintance at the moment is not the charm of femininity alone. It is the charm of fragility and delicacy and grace—of foolish, bewitching, perfume-y qualities that have been out of fashion as long as most of us can remember.

Any boy with a spark of manhood, finding himself with a girl dressed as nowadays she is bound to be dressed, feels that if he doesn't supply her with an expensively nutritious meal within an hour, she is likely to collapse from sheer enchanting girlish weakness.

He didn't know you could feel so protective toward anything in the world as he now feels toward a slender girl in a wispy dress and tucked-up hair (only two inches long, that hair of hers, really!) with a weak, confiding little voice and the air of one only too eager to believe anything and everything he may tell her.

Short-haired, square-skirted girls didn't have that voice and manner.

We know, of course, that personality changes with costume. But this is almost like the birth of a new race. Or perhaps more like the rebirth of an old race.

And it has taken so short a time, not only for the girls to be transformed, but for the boys, beholding them, to be transformed also.

The youth of 1930 is a new creature likewise.

Typewriter Dreams -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Mid-Summer Day's Dream! Gentle and pastoral, sonnet-sweet, roaming-the-meadows-and-while-down-the-river-we-drive-to-forever sort of words! They don't go with typewriters, you think. The typewriter is one of the props of the great city landscape. And puts in its voice to swell the frenzy of noise in the play there that runs a continuous performance every minute of every day.

But don't they, though? The typewriter may not harmonize with the shape and color of a dream, I know, but out of it dreams rise. Like many another unbeautiful part of modern life, unbeautiful save to the superfine eye of the machinery-age lover, we use it to produce the beauty that our souls must have.

Once a story of faintingly beautiful and exquisite quality was traced in an elegant hand in violet ink, with loops and whirls beneath the author's name, upon delicate paper, each letter just as tall as its blood brother, as a word a poem in evenness and crystal clear to read. By and by the pomposity, as he neared our times, of they found his thoughts outstripping his hand or himself weary of accomplishment, for his handwriting became terrible' And the bird-tracks-on-a-snowy-morning pages of Horace Greeley and other great men came in.

Then the weaver of beauty took to the typewriter like a baby duck to the pond. And dreams in words still rise from the artist hand, but by way of a complicated little black machine.

Other dreams besides the stories that intrigue you hover about the little engine that looks so alien to phalanx Dreams from pretty modern heads.

Dreams of greatness. Hopes for goodness. Fancies afloat with money and gifts from heaven she never, or she thinks it "will be never," gets. Such as — LOVE, exterior decorations oh, clothes are so thrilling now! ...ovel a trifle big time to pay. Oh Joy, a AUTOS

THE OCEAN WAVE! A real vacation to Europe

"I'll never, never get it!" moans One, the office girl. "Just a new hat and frock, and two weeks at a little round lake—that will be me!"

But right along with her own voice of Hope babbles on dreams take shape; and every boat to Europe, Glory, my dear, is full of wildly happy office Ones, who never thought to sail the ocean blue for "a run across," either!

Save your money, and make it work for you, and you will be listening to the seething rush of the Atlantic below your port-hole, too, some sweet day. Dressing for dinner—we'll hope. Saluting the Captain. Admiring the Surgeon's scarlet velvet and gold braid on his sleeve. Knowing that over-stuffed luxury of idly reading a gift novel on a sunny deck, whilst your little white teeth nibble over-stuffed fruit from an over stuffed steamer basket!

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

MOVEMENTS IN WALL STREET ARE NARROW

New York, May 24 – The stock market ended the week with quiet strength, and speculative sentiment showed considerably improved today.

Price movements were largely narrow but yesterday's rally was well maintained, and extended moderately in a spot of weak selling was meagre and well absorbed.

MOTORS IN FAVOR

Speculation for the rise was pressed forward in some of the automotive equipments. Motor shares generally showed firm tone. Sponsors of these shares were encouraged by trade reports indicating that the industry made a substantial gain in April, and the early part of May.

In the motor equipments, Briggs rose more than 2 points to a new high, Borg Warner made a similar gain, Electric Auto Lite showed firm Murray were firm. General Motors and Chrysler also sold up moderately.

Shares gaining 2 to 3 points included Larkawanna, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, American Tobacco, Consolidated Gas, Air Reduction and May Department Stores.

Such issues as General Electric, Westinghouse, American Can, Dupont, and United Aircraft gained a point or more, and U. S. Steel and U. S. Steel were steady. A few of the volatile issues sold up sharply, Ingersoll Rand rising 9 points.

The week-end trade and business reviews on the whole indicated little change, but were slightly more cheerful than they have been of late.

BUILDING HAS GAINS

Despite such unfavorable developments as further sagging of steel prices and reports of cancellation of farm equipment orders, building operations showed further gains. The motor industry, while probably at its seasonal peak, was said to be maintaining operations well up.

The Federal Reserve Board's monthly review of business, covering April and early May, generally indicated that business had taken a turn for the better.

Industrial activity increased slightly, factory employment declined only seasonally and factory payrolls showed a smaller reduction than is usual at this season. Wholesale price conditions declined in April and the first half of May, and there was a further easing of open market money rates.

Compared to 1928, however, the output in the first four months of 1930 was the larger in the production of petroleum and silk industries, slightly smaller in steel and coal, and considerably smaller in cotton and wool textiles flour meat, packing automobile tires and lumber.

This was taken to mean that for some industries normal conditions have been restored and that their is a good prospect of a more favorable year being normal in a majority of industries, when average business over a period of years is used as a standard.

Match Company's Profits Increase

Directors of the International Match Corporation yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 per share on both the common stock and participating preference stock.

It was announced that for the year ended December 31, 1929, consolidated net profits of the corporation and its subsidiary companies, after deducting interest, depreciation and taxes, amounted to $20,623,330, or the equivalent of $8.77 per share on the combined participating preference and common stocks outstanding at the end of the year. These earnings compare with $19,098,860, or $8.12 per share for the previous year.

Market St. Ry's. Profits Increase

New York, May 24—Market Street Railway reports for April profit of $76,460 after charges, but before depreciation and fed ral taxes, against $52,849 in April, 1929. For 12 months ended April 30 profit was $883,163 before depreciation and federal taxes, against $658,322 in the same period last year

Stock Dividend

Scott Paper Co. declared semi-annual stock dividend of 2 per cent on common and regular quarterly cash dividend of 35 cents on common, payable June 30 to stock of record June 16.

BUSINESS NOW ON UPGRADE

Washington, May 24—The Federal Reserve board's monthly summary of commerce and industry for April and early May, issued here, indicates that business conditions have taken a turn for the better.

NEWS OF New York Curb BOSTON Trends of the Day MARKETS

PRICES HIGHER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were generally higher in week-end trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Investment trust equities were the most active issues in the local turnover of shares.

Bigelow-Sanford, world's largest carpet makers, were rather heavily traded in and moved against the general trend, off 3 to a new low at 62.

Atchison sold up 1¼ at 228¼. American & Continental Corp. rose 1¼ at 27. Associated Gas & Electric was strong throughout the session, gaining 1¼ at 39¼.

New England Telephone and Torrington Co. ticked on a point each. U. S. & Overseas rose 2½. American Telephone extended its Friday jump about four more than 2 points. Eastern Steamship recovered more than a point from the session's low.

Edison moved up 2¾ at 272. General Electric advanced a point. Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred was off a point at 80.

HOLD AROOSTOOK

A. L. A., Hyannis—In addition to my other holdings, as per list herewith, I have 200 shares of Bangor & Aroostook. Should I hold them?

Ans.—We suggest you hold your Bangor Aroostook. Aroostook's surplus after charges for 13 months ended April 30 may be estimated at $10 a share on 141,792 shares of common outstanding, after allowing for preferred dividend requirements. This compares with $8.86 in 1929 on 138,454 shares outstanding at close of that year and $6.94 for 1928 on 106,560 shares of common. Surplus after charges for 13 months ended with April is likely to be around $1,560,520, against $1,388,433 for calendar year 1929 and $83,077 for 1928.

Record earnings of the road may be expected for largely by the bumper potato crop in Aroostook County. From Aug. 1, 1929 to April 1 last, it is estimated the Bangor handled more than 55,000 carloads of potatoes against 40,600 the entire previous crop year.

Setting aside 7% the common has a 1930 high at 84½ and low at 74. At present quotation it offers a yield of about 4½ per cent. Directors meet for dividend action May 27. It has been rumored an extra might be considered.

NO CHANGE

C. S. Lynn.—What is your opinion of my securities, as follows: $1000 each Prudence Co. 5½s, New York Title & Mortgage 5½s, 25 shares American Telephone & Telegraph, 12 shares Southern California Edison, six American Tobacco "B," five each International Harvester, Northern Pacific and Westinghouse Electric? Is any change necessary?

Ans.—No. Keep your list intact. The bonds are sound and you can count on the income from the stocks. You could put on yours American Telephone & Telegraph "rights" before August 1. Stockholders of record May 23 are entitled to subscribe for stock at $100 a share on the basis of one additional share for each six held.

SEVERE LOSS

Mrs. M. G., Boston.—On the advice of a friend, who considered I would double my money in a short while, I bought 25 shares National Cash Register "A" at 109. What is your opinion of the stock?

Ans.—National Cash Register, incorporated in 1906, conducts a business established in 1882. Dividends of $3 a share annually have been paid on the "A" stock since issuance in 1923. Extras of $1 a share were paid January, 1929 and 1930. For year ended December 31, 1929, earnings were $7.01 a share, compared with $7.11 in 1928. However, in the first quarter of current year, net profits were 77 cents a share, contrasted with $1.53 for similar period in 1929. At recent levels the stock was more than 50 points below the price you paid. Your friend did not know future prices. He was merely guessing. That is all anyone can do.

Rail Issues Lead in Bond Sellings

New York, May 24—Firmness of railroad issues was the bright spot in a quiet trading session in bonds today. Turnover for the list was small, and changes were narrow. Baltimore & Ohio 5s gained a point, and Rock Island 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, and Atchison General 4s advanced about ¼.

Noted Swimmer to Be Married June 29

Haverhill, May 24—Aldo Daniel Santarelli, of 209 River st., Haverhill's noted swimmer who participated in two Canadian marathon swimming contests for big cash prizes and Miss Alice Fantini, daughter of Mrs. Louisa Fantini, of 95 Beach st., are to be married in St. Rita's Catholic church here June 29.

Arundel Profits Up

Baltimore, May 24—Arundel Corp. reports for four months ended April 30 net of $629,822 after charges, against $444,405 in April 1929. April net was $234,308 after charges, against $123,238.

CURB MARKET BUYING WAVE COMES LATE

New York, May 24—In a characteristic last-hour buying wave, the general run of stock leaders on the curb market today were bid persistently up the line to moderately higher price levels.

The session was marked by extreme dullness in trading activity with the turnover failing to new low volume for the year. However, the absence of selling pressure, except in individual issues, paved the way for the successful drive against the shorts in the closing half of the day.

Outstanding features in the utility group included Electric Bond & Share, up over a point; American Commonwealth B, up over a point, and United States Power B, up over a point.

Other issues which edged fractionally higher included American Superpower, Electric Power & Light warrants and Middle West Utilities.

Cities Service ruled steady in a narrow trading rut, and finished unpromisingly unchanged.

South Penn Oil took the lead in a generally firm oil group and was up almost 2 points. Other favorites to close higher were Cosden, Ohio, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum.

North and South American Corp. was an outstanding strong spot in an extremely firm investment trust group running up almost 4 points. Countering this was a break of 4 points in Goldman Sachs, sending it to a new low for the year.

Great Lakes Dredging was the speculative highlight in the industrial section, soaring 15 points to a new high. In the lower priced division Detroit Aircraft was heavily bought, advancing a point within reach of its high.

GAS INDUSTRY GAIN IS SEEN

Chicago, May 24—With less than 2 per cent of its potentialities reached despite its tremendous growth in recent years, the gas industry is on the threshold of the greatest expansion period yet witnessed, Albert E. Peirce, president of Central Public Service Corporation, said today.

Mr. Peirce's forecast is backed by experience in building Central Public Service to a $350,000,000 organization. Substantial investments in gas properties from Seattle, Washington to Atlanta, Georgia.

"Pronounced dead by a host of industrial diagnosticians innumerable times, during the past 25 years, the gas industry today is in its strongest position and on the threshold of the greatest period of expansion that it has ever known," Mr. Peirce said. "Its development resembles that of the automobile industry, because both have been declared dying or at least dormant and yet passed the saturation points predicted for them.

"Through it all the gas industry has been able to make steady and increasing returns to those who invested capital in it."

With the advent of electric light, Mr. Peirce pointed out, the gas industry was forced to turn its attention to heating.

Wheat Has Rally in Chicago Mart

Chicago, May 24—Wheat prices rallied quickly today from the initial decline associated with favorable weather for the domestic crop and with lower quotations at Liverpool. Strengthening factors were Washington reports that United States winter wheat promises the smallest yield since 1925 and that Argentine export supplies are now insignificant.

Opening unchanged to ⅛c off, Chicago wheat afterward scored some gain all around. Corn and oats were easy, with corn starting ¼-½c down and subsequently sagging a little more. Provisions held firm.

Extra Dividend on Allegheny Steel

New York, May 24—Allegheny Steel Company today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents on common stock, in addition to the three regular monthly dividends of 15 cents each. The extra and the monthly are payable July 18 on stock of record June 30. The quarterly dividend is payable Aug. 18, on record of July 31, and the third Sept. 18, on record of Aug. 30.

Quarter Is Best for Unit Corp.

Chicago, May 24 (INS)—Unit Corporation of America had the best first quarter in its history in the first three months of 1930, it was learned officially today. Earnings of the company for the period, after taxes, were $103,460, equivalent to 29 cents a share on the 110,000 shares of common stock outstanding after preferred dividends. This compares with earnings of $99,832, or 27 cents a share in the same period of 1929.

INDUSTRY IS ABOVE USUAL LEVELS

New York, May 24—While general trade throughout the nation lags a little, basic industrial activity is being sustained above seasonal levels, and is likely to respond quickly along with prices to any increased buying pressure, says The Business Week in its report covering the week ending May 24.

The Business Thermometer continues to climb toward the normal level for this season and the year. It rose 1.3 per cent for the week, and is now only a little more than 2 per cent below normal, although still more than 10 per cent under last year's level at this time. The exact reading is 96 per cent, comparing with 96.6 in the preceding week and 108.3 for the same period last year.

It may slip a bit from time to time in coming weeks, and will probably not be able to hold firmly to an average around normal until fall, but there is little doubt now about the upward trend of general business during the next few months.

The patient is clearly convalescent and should be calling for something more substantial to eat soon. The vital organs are stronger; only the circulation is still somewhat slow.

Production and inventories have been cut in some lines to a point where retailers are being a bit cramped to meet even current consumer demand. Even when considering the lower level of prices, business volume is higher than it looks.

Only in the stock market is business so slack that it has to play solitaire; but nobody thinks this rest cure will do it any harm. Disturbed foreign conditions and declining foreign trade are the only clouds on the quiet summer horizon.

Merger of Power and Gas Approved

New York, May 24—Affiliation, as suggested in utility circles, between Consolidated Gas and Niagara Hudson Power systems would bring operating and financial advantage of the unification of two managements ranking high in utility achievement.

Probable election of Floyd L. Carlisle as a trustee of Consolidated Gas Co. next Thursday is looked upon as another policy indicative of the imminence of New York state utility concentration, particularly by an affiliation between Niagara Hudson and Consolidated Gas Co. interests.

There are still many obstacles, however. Primarily there is the divergence of interests represented by large group holdings in both. An alignment of these interests on a mutually satisfactory basis is likely to be the next step.

Newton Loan Award Is Made to Shawmut

Newton awarded to Shawmut Corp. at 2.85 per cent, $100,000 loan payable Oct. 24. Other bidders were: Day Trust Co., 2.89 per cent; First National Bank of Newton, 2.715 per cent; R. S. Mosely & Co., 2.73 per cent; Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, 2.73 per cent; Bank of Commerce & Trust, 2.75 per cent and Faxon, Gade & Co., 2.94 per cent.

Woburn, has awarded $200,000 loan to Shawmut Corporation at 2.71 per cent. Other bidders were F. S. Moseley, 2.73; Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, 2.79; Bank of Commerce & Trust Co., 2.81 per cent; and Faxon, Gade & Co., 2.92 per cent.

The BIG House -:- By Jack Lait

Visitors can't stay long today. Get goin', Kid."

"Goodbye, Dean!"

"Goodbye, Anne!"

Anne watched him vanish. Then she sighed.

"I am sorry for him," she mused. "And I am fond of him . . . but I couldn't—I just couldn't say 'I love you.'"

Back to Work
Takes New Resolution

Kent went back to the jute mill with a new resolution in his heart. An acid resolution. He would spare no one. He would think only of himself. These men were not his kind. What if he did double-cross them! They were not of his world. Once out of prison he would never see the likes of them again. It was no situation for ethics, and intangible split-hair honor. The law of the lawless!

He would insinuate himself into their confidence, sit in council with them, learn of their plans as one of them, and then inform on them. Stool pigeon! Fink! What difference! If they were his own kind he might hesitate, but with men like them—bah! The code! The code—handed down through generations of wolves!

* * *

"Kid, I'm leaving you tomorrow." It was Morgan's low, dull voice. He stood beside Kent in the jute mill.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I got my rain-check. I'm going out tomorrow—out into the world—out to—to—past that gate."

"You are going out? Why, I thought you had a long bit ahead of you yet?"

Kent was dazed.

"Oh, there was a pushover—my legalar is clever."

"You're going to leave prison?" Kent could hardly realize the significance of the words.

"Far, far behind—in the big checkers. Out there."

"I can't understand how you beat the barrier and—"

His voice wormwood. He was griped with a terrible hatred —a hot hatred for the jaws of man, a cold hatred for the wiles of man—a hatred for injustice of man, a hatred for Morgan—a hatred for all mankind.

"Cheer up, Kid—maybe I can plug for you—as big a bit off'ens on the outside lookin' in than on the inside lookin' out. Maybe there's someone I can see for you—your sweetheart—"

"You lowlife—don't mention her. No, you can't do a thing for me!"

Kent's tone was a sneer. But Morgan was in jubilant spirits. He could not be offended now. He began to whistle softly.

"I won't sock you on the kisser, Kid. I feel too great. Pull yourself together an'—pray."

"That's easy enough for you to say." Kent's voice had changed. He began to blubber now. "You are going out! You can talk like that. You are not just a crook—you're a bankist—so talk like that. Pull myself together and—pray!"

* * *

The whistle blew for the recreation period. The prisoners moved back from their work and formed into line to lockstep out for a few minutes' fresh air. Kent and Kent, who fell in behind Morgan, clutched at the knife he had in his blouse, the knife he had taken earlier in the day from the scurvy Mex after Butch had clutched it. Kent had found no time yet to dispose of the knife, and right now he touched it lovingly, caressingly, as his added, sullen gaze rested on the nape of Morgan's neck. But Kent was no killer.

In the recreation yard he isolated himself. Morgan was gleefully flying the others on the ground fortune. Kent visited malicious dictions on him beneath his breath. An unearthly hatred was taken earlier in the day from the scurvy Mex after Butch had clutched it. Kent had found no time yet to dispose of the knife, and right now he touched it lovingly, caressingly, as his added, sullen gaze rested on the nape of Morgan's neck. But Kent was no killer.

In the recreation yard he isolated himself. Morgan was gleefully flying the others on the ground fortune. Kent visited malicious dictions on him beneath his breath. An unearthly hatred was taking form against the man—this man who was going free—seared his soul. Why should he, a crook, a thief, a lowed to go forth to rob and murder? It was foul, fiendish injustice.

While Kent was in this mood, Oliver, his furtive little mouse's eye shrinking, toddled up, by law at once that Kent was in low spirits.

"Bad news, Kid?" he asked.

"Nothing very pleasant—I just learned that I'll have to do my time."

"What did I tell you?—get the low down on someone. Tell Wallace. He's for you already."

"Would that actually help me?" Kent was doubtful of everything. Just now time off?

"Sure, plenty of time—and if you crab a big bizness it may kick the gates for you. An' tell me in—that'll let us both out. See?"

Kent's mind was whizzing. Kick the gates for him! And he knew there was a "big breeze" in the air. Maybe with Morgan out it would never materialize. Morgan would be better off here . . . kick the gates . . . liberty . . . .

"I see," he gasped. "get the goods on someone. Him."

Kent stumbled away. He saw Walton standing alone a short distance off. As Kent watched his shrewdly as he scraped toward Wallace and as Kent came a breast of him, and pithout turning his head, he slipped from the corner of his bloodless mouth:

"I think, sir, Morgan's got a knife on him."

Kent entered the cellhouse. Wallace looked after him a bit puzzled. A bit skeptical, a bit suspicious. But Oliver, a sardonic grin on his mug, a leer of triumph, came along side Kent and the two men exchanged a glance of profound understanding. Wallace gave a mincing perceptible nod of his head.

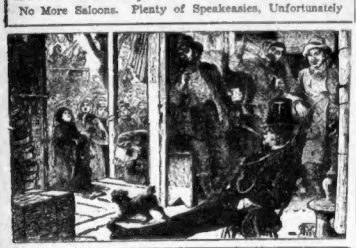
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Has Gone, Thank Heaven!

No More Saloons. Plenty of Speakeasies, Unfortunately



OHIO WOMEN PRAYING BEFORE A SALOON 56 YEARS AGO

Pictures illustrating life in America reprinted now from old numbers of the London Graphic include the one above. It is described by the English editor as follows:

"The Whiskey War in Ohio"

"A typical incident, drawn by our roving artist in 1874, in the temperance crusades of an era long before prohibition, when ladies went round the various saloons of the cities and sang psalms and offered up fervent prayers in the midst of whiskey kegs and lager-beer barrels, and under the hostile noses of the proprietors of these seductive but demoralizing chattels. One at least of these proprietors—Mr. Van Pelt of New Vienna, reputed 'the wickedest man in Ohio,' became converted, and, after first 'threatening to brain the praying sisterhood with an axe, used this very same instrument to destroy his whiskey and beer barrels.'"

The villainy of the four gentlemen in this saloon, as shown by the English artist, is, perhaps, exaggerated. Living Americans, who confess with a blush that they occasionally saw the inside of a saloon, do not recall having seen any characters exactly like these.

Nevertheless, some saloons WERE hard places, containing hard men, whose hearts could not be softened even by praying ladies.

Let us all rejoice that we have got rid of the saloon in its worst and its mildest forms.

Let us pray now that we shall find some way of getting rid of the SPEAKEASY, and the "soft drink parlor" with gin attached.

When Opper makes a cartoon words are unnecessary. You look at his picture, read his lettering, and know the whole story.

Nevertheless, writers, as well as artists, must live, and words must be written, even when they are superfluous.

Here is illustrated a well-known passage, "They walked right in, and turned around, and walked right out again."

Our friends in Europe, about to form a federation of states, each state making its laws, with one high government to boss them all, will learn something if they come to America.

They will find a magnificent free nation, with certain LIMITATIONS.

The picture shows some of the limitations.

The magnificent free nation drinks poisoned bootleg whiskey. And when it isn't quite poisonous enough, the Government adds poison to make sure.

The prohibition enforcement agent, in the name of high morals, shoots you up. The gunman shoots you down.

And the foolish lawmaker is busy from January first to December thirty-first, either making foolish laws or thinking them up.

However, there are no custom houses separating our States, we have good roads, lots of money.

And we are able to live down our mistakes, including our foolishness at elections, when about half the people VOTE, 10 per cent of them THINK, and perhaps 1 per cent really know what it's all about.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, May 24—For the first time in newspaper work I have seen a large and capable group newspapermen face the problem of unemployment and emerge, to my notion, triumphantly. Until a few weeks ago there were 20 men for almost every job.

It is estimated that during February of this year more than 800 reporters, copy readers, sub-editors and special writers were off regular payrolls in the metropolitan area. All were men and women especially trained in editorial work and knew no other trade.

The skies have cleared, but for a period were dangerously black. Newspaper workers are notoriously improvident, and probably not more than 10 per cent of the unemployed had the equivalent of a month's salary for the proverbial rainy day. The general idleness lasted about four months.

Coupled with the temporary dearth of jobs, there was not the usual outlet among cheaper magazines and trade journals for "free lance" material which has often bridged over a period of slack for newspaper writers in other days. The entire publishing field was marking time.

During the hiatus, I talked to a number who almost over night had no idea where to turn in the emergency. They fought a hundred terrors without a single whine. There is one $150 a week reporter whose wife does not know today that he was off the payroll for seven weeks.

He worked as a cashier in an all-night restaurant for $27.50 a week. I heard of another who took an elevator job in an apartment building and a re-write man is reported back on the regular staff after serving as a time keeper for a construction company.

The silver lining to the cloud should be a new appreciation of thrift among men inclined to scoff at it, but the experience will not probably be heeded. Journalism, just as the stage, produces a phase of swaggering vagabondage not likely to die. It is a part of the credo.

In editorial shops the "shakeup" is inevitable. General demotions and promotions come with seasons. Most newspaper workers have a premonition of the falling axe. In the jargon they hear "the rattle of the ball and chain."

In fiction about journalism the Blue Envelope is mentioned with a shudder. The legend—its origin is obscure—is that newspaper workers receive discharges in blue envelopes. As one frequently fired—to be exact 14 times—in other days I never received one nor do I know of others being so dismissed. My discharge was always a crisp announcement in this wise: "You are through Saturday." And, sure enough, I was.

In my payroll days out in the briar patches the grand bounce did not mean a thing. An employe merely walked over to another shop, announced he was fired, and, as a rule, was told to hang up his hat. The only barrier was to be caught "faking."

It was Thomas Burke in Parliament who gave journalism the name of the Fourth Estate—adding it was the most powerful of all. Anyway, its the grandest.

Vagrant thought: In all the years this chronicler has been dealing out free puffs he has found, strangely enough, people of the theater are the least appreciative. And equally strange, the newspaperman is most appreciative of all.

"The Duke's evening shirt front gave out crepitant noises"—From a current novel. Among us commoners we think they merely pop like a new saddle.

A speakeasy proprietor, inspired by the New Yorker's "My Noolas," has painted on his window "Reeb and Rab—Importations." Reeb and Rab backwards is the giveaway.

"We have assigned 11 others their make-up for a surprise costume dinner party," writes Helen K., "but we can think of no one you could represent. You are so long and skinny."

I might shut one eye and go see a needle.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The tree of liberty only grows when watered by the blood of tyrants. —Barere.

The gifts of enemies are not gifts, and have no value. —Sophocles.

I know nothing about it; I am my own ancestor. —D'Abrantes.

An Alarming Symptom

But There Is Still Time

Princeton seniors vote on various burning issues, such as the most popular member of the class, the best athlete, the favorite professor, prohibition, and even literature. It is a habit common to all institutions of learning at this season. The results, perhaps, are not important, but you read them.

On prohibition, for instance, the vote was 48 for, 344 against. Whiskey was the favorite beverage of 44, beer of 40, milk of 39.

Shakespeare beat Shaw as the best dramatist, Vessar was preferred to Smith among women's colleges, Peter Arno was voted a greater artist than Titian or Leonardo da Vinci.

Knowledge was considered less beneficial than the contacts formed at the university, and Greta Garbo was the pet movie actress.

So far so good. This is in accordance with tradition. But when the class votes, 252 to 94, in favor of the Phi Beta Kappa key for scholarship rather than the varsity "F" for football, one must conclude that there is something radically wrong with old Nassau, after all.

It looks as if studies are beginning to interfere with education.

Let us hope the evil will be checked in time, or at least not spread elsewhere. It's a menace. It would put our universities on the same level as correspondence schools.

Developing a Market

It's a Big One

Says Dr. Perry S. Lichtenstein, physician of the New York Tombs prison staff:

"People used to laugh at the idea that boys and girls in their teens were being caught in the toils of the dope ring.

"The time for laughter has passed.

"Dealers who market drugs in bulk, pedlars who hawk it on street corners and in the vicinity of schools, agents who give away sample doses to youthful prospects, are sowing the seeds of degradation and ruin among those who will be tomorrow's citizens."

Dr. Lichtenstein points out that adolescents will "try anything once." That is why they are easy marks for the dope pedlars. And once they acquire the habit, they are customers for life.

No complaint about hard times from the dope industry. It has planned for the future, and already is cashing in.

Once-Overs

Because you have little money you may think you are not wanted in certain circles in which you would like to move.

Therefore you have never made it apparent that you would be willing and glad to associate with and reciprocate in a social way.

You have let your inferiority complex govern you and have become dissatisfied and displeased at conditions around.

Of course, there are always certain circles in which you would not be welcome if not provided with plenty of money.

But where financial backing is the most important requirement in any clique or crowd, you will find the association is not worth what it costs.

People whose friends is worth having and you can be of help or benefit to you, look for something besides money holdings when they choose friends.

The circle in which you must buy or pay your way is not worth it.

Your standing in that circle depends upon your keeping your money.

If you have real value in your own makeup you will find worthwhile friends.

These worthwhiles persons are mentally wealthy.

They appreciate and welcome a kindred spirit regardless of money backing.

Their ideals are high and they choose their friends because of their real worth.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

It pleases Mr. Bernard Shaw to tell the world at regular intervals that natural selection has been "exploded," and it does not hamper the operation of natural selection in the very least that he should do this.

H. G. Wells

But natural selection has been no more "exploded" by recent research than the rejection of underweight coins at the mint has been exploded by the doctrine of relativity. Wherever there are favorable hereditable variations natural selection must be at work.

Nearly three-quarters of a century have passed since the controversial cataclysms of the mid-Victorian period, and Darwinism has been criticised and tested in every conceivable way.

It cannot be said that it has been destroyed, but it has undergone restatement in certain respects.

The modification of a species by the natural selection of variations is still an undefeated theory. That idea from Darwin's writings lives and flourishes. The remoulding of Darwinism has concerned the part of it which deals with the mechanism of heredity and the intimate nature of variations.

For in Darwin's time hardly anything was definitely known about the inheritance of individual differences. The chromosomes to be presently described had not yet been seen; the essential facts of fertilization were unknown; most important of all experimental breeding had not drawn a clear distinction between variations and those which are not.

Since that time accurate knowledge has accumulated on these questions. The microscopic changes in the germ-cells that accompany fertilization were observed; the chromosomes, the bearers of the physical basis of heredity, were discovered, and their complicated but regular movements were traced as they passed from one generation to the next.

Moreover, the study of inheritance was attacked experimentally. Even in Darwin's time the Austrian Abbe Mendel (1822-1884) had experimented on the interbreeding of varieties of plants and had discovered the two most fundamental laws that govern hereditary transmission.

But the significance of his work was not recognized at the time. His communication to the little Natural History Society at Brunn (now called Brno) dealt chiefly with peas and arithmetic, not the sort of things that cause excitement and clamor, and in the confused tumult of the 19th century Evolution Controversy they passed unnoticed.

This rediscovery was the stimulus for an enormous amount of careful experimental breeding of animals and plants. New conceptions arose of how variations originate and are handed on from generation to generation, and of how they may play their part in the struggle for existence.

Here we are merely revising the broad issues before us. Later on we shall discuss the question whether variations occur through a "life force" driving the whole species in a definite direction or through some blind disposition to vary evoked by the action of external conditions upon the reproductive process.

That is an interesting issue of profound importance. And we still have to consider the still-vexed question whether the inheritance of individually acquired characteristics, which was the essence of the original theory of Lamarck, occurs or not.

The Case of Home Brew

By ARTHUR BAER

We wish F. Scott McBride would make up what mind he has left.

First, he denounces home brew as the nectar of the gobs. Next he informs a committee that home brew is within the law if it doesn't spread its elbows.

Then he makes a complete detour on a dime and insists that he never plugged the contraband of thirst.

It's a question whether he did or didn't say that the Anti-Saloon League was a colossal merger.

Which is all right with us if we can claim that a damp cellar is an act of nature.

In the meantime enforcement has been switched from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. It's the old army game. If a thing is a flop you transfer it to somebody else, paint your skull with iodine and ask for leave of absence.

While the transfer bill was being eased along on its loose casters, Senator Glad Tydings of another state sought to eliminate government poison from industrial alcohol on the ground that drinking was a recognized industry.

They snowed Senator Tydings under and hid the shovel. His substitutes for the current poison were pyridine, malachite green and diethylphalate.

Say, senator, if we had that mixture we wouldn't need industrial alcohol.

That listens like an excellent concoction. How long do you shake it?

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Are You a Barbarian?

Happy?

"Well, so-so" you mumble. "Sometimes—but not always. There's always something to take the joy out of life. But of course, that's just the breaks."

But is happiness "just the breaks" or is it something that most people can achieve and maintain if they know how to go about it? Prof. Pitkin says it isn't and it is, in his new book, "The Psychology of Happiness."

Joy doesn't just happen—we achieve it, says Prof. Pitkin, we achieve it through knowledge and control of ourselves and our environments. And, if we fail to achieve it, that isn't a sign that Fate's an old meanie and has it in for us. It's a sign that we don't understand ourselves, or life, and don't know how to ride hard on either.

Elsie Robinson

Man life is divided into four great planes of development—the savage, the barbarian, the intellectual and the scientist. And a man's chance of happiness depends on the plane of his development.

A savage's chances are pretty slim. Sometimes his lot is cast in pleasant, peaceful places, but generally he's beset, for and aft, by wild beasts and enemies, pestilence and elements. And he is even more beset by the darkness within himself. He is so ignorant that he must take life as it comes—and it usually comes hard. A barbarian's a bit better off.

"Barbarians," says Professor Pitkin, "have learned to control some important forces and conditions in their environment, but not in themselves. They can plow, weave, build cities and monuments, drill slaves to work and soldiers to fight. But they understand nothing about the workings of the human mind the emotions, the body's cravings and the spirit's aspirations."

And so the barbarians cannot wholly plan their lives or control their own happiness.

"Half-masters of nature, and slaves to the unknown master within themselves, they blunder through life. The countries which love to call themselves civilized still harbor millions of barbarians. They know so little about human nature that they do not know they are barbarians."

Millions of barbarians—are you one of them?

Yes, I know you wear civilized clothes, conduct civilized work, go through civilized gestures. But do you know what it is all about? Do you know what you, yourself, are all about? Can you understand or control the forces that shape life? Can you deliberately plan and achieve happiness, clearing your way through fear and confusion and opposition, within and without you? Or is happiness, for you, "just the breaks?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Queen, the Kitchen-Maid

IMPERIOUS, she ruled
Her land, from sea to sea;
And there was none who dared
To question her decree.

Sometimes with gracious air,
Sometimes in scornful mood,
While cringing courtiers
Held all she did was good.

But to her court came one
To whom her heart knelt down
In spite of all her pride,
Her wisdom and her crown.

She joyed, and yet her joy
Marred sweet tranquillity;
She trembled when she found
Herself no longer free.

Imperious, she ruled
Until she learned one day
That queens, like kitchen maids,
Must own Love's greater sway.

Poor kitchen maids, poor queens,
Alas! that this should be.
And worse, the rule still holds
For you, for me!
